Amended Crime Bill Aids Police

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's anticrime bill has emerged from a Senate Judiciary subcommittee bristling with amendments that would grant expanded powers to police, including wiretapping and eavesdropping authority.

The subcommittee's version of the measure strikes out at recent Supreme Court decisions on criminal case confessions and electronic eavesdropping. And it flies directly in the face of Johnson's request that Congress outlaw all electronic eavesdropping except in cases directly related to the national security.

As proposed by Johnson, the bill would have provided federal funds to assist in better training and equipping of local police forces.

As approved Monday by the subcommittee and sent to the full Senate Judiciary Committee, the measure also would:

—Remove Supreme Court restrictions on the admissibility of confessions in criminal cases.

—Permit wiretapping and other electronic eavesdropping by law enforcement officers under court order without previous determination that national security was involved.

—Authorize the FBI director to establish a National Institute of Law Enforcement Training and, at the request of any state or local government, provide training for its police force.

—Bar federal courts below the

Woman Killed In Isolated Barn Home

Loss Estimated Over $2 Million In 6 Counties

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Brush fires in six Southern California counties raged for the third straight day today, killing an elderly woman, forcing evacuation of thousands of residents and destroying scores of homes.

The flames, whipped by winds gusting up to 100 miles an hour, had destroyed more than 125,000 acres by early morning. Officials estimated total fire damage at more than $2 million.

The body of Abigail Blodgett, 81, was found Monday in the basement of her small Riverside County home five miles north of San Jacinto. Forest rangers said they thought her house was a barn and bypassed it when they went through the area warning residents of the approaching flames.

The largest of several blazes left 50 homes known destroyed in Orange County, southeast of Los Angeles. More than 5,000 persons were evacuated from the path of the 35,000-acre holocaust. Lucille Fegel, 67, was killed during the evacuation when she was struck by an unoccupied car rolling down a hill.

Officials closed 40 public and private schools in Orange County Monday, releasing 30,000 students.

In San Diego County to the south, three fires blackened 55,000 acres and destroyed at least 26 buildings. One blaze charred 35,000 acres in a 15-mile (Continued on Page 2)

Soviets Soft Land Spaceship, Send Up Yet Another

MOSCOW (AP)—Cosmos 186, one of two Soviet unmanned Sputniks which deked and separated Monday, made a soft landing on earth today at the command of a ground station, an official announcement said.

The use of a soft landing to end the mission seemed to confirm earlier indications that the docking was a rehearsal for a manned flight and the building in orbit of a high orbiting space platform.

The announcement said Cosmos 186 was brought to an undisclosed spot on earth at 11:20 a.m. Moscow time (3:20 a.m. EST) after "automatic linkup and other scientific tasks."

The other unmanned Sputnik, Cosmos 188, continued to orbit earth, it added.

Earlier in the day the Soviet Union disclosed it had sent up still another satellite—Cosmos 189. It also continued to orbit.

Soviet scientists disclosed that the unmanned spaceship was sent into space Monday while another Sputnik rocketed up to dock automatically with another unmanned vehicle.

Cosmos 189 raised to six the number of unmanned Sputniks put into orbit in six days, an unusual flurry of Soviet Space activity on the eve of celebrations of the Bolshevik revolution.

There has been speculation the Russians would send up a new manned spaceship for the anniversary.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Cosmos 189 was functioning normally, circling the earth every 95.7 minutes with 332 miles the maximum height of its orbit. No specific mission was announced for the craft, but the Soviets said it was "designed to continue space research."

Cosmos 186 and 188, which joined and then separated on command from computers 3½ hours later, apparently continue to circle the earth, but there was no indication if they would carry out further joint maneuvers. The docking Monday was a test for systems used in building stations in space, the Soviet announcement said.

Georgi Petrov, director of the Space Exploration Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences called the unmanned line-up "of greater importance than the American experiment in manual docking of the space vehicle Gemini on the body of the carrier rocket."

He claimed it was technically more advanced than the American experiments and more economical from the point of view of the weight involved.

Wounded Husband Happy Cleveland Horror Ended

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "I was in heaven—on my honeymoon, then all hell broke loose with this nut," said Charles Caldwell after 44 hours of terror ended with the shooting of his bride and her rejected suitor's suicide.

Lida Caldwell, 19, was taken at gunpoint from the young couple's apartment a few hours after the wedding Saturday. Robert Batch, 23, a former mental patient she dated until about a month ago, shot and wounded her 18-year-old husband as the couple arrived home from Detroit where they were married.

Batch then took the dark-haired, brown-eyed girl to his third-floor attic apartment in suburban University Heights, holding the bride and police at bay until Monday afternoon.

Batch, quoted by his mother as saying, "There was no reason to go on living," shot Mrs. Caldwell in the chest and turned the gun on himself.

"My darling, My darling," moaned the dying Batch as police stormed into the apartment to find him draped across his young captive.

"Get me out of here," begged Mrs. Caldwell as she was carried to an ambulance.

The bullet pierced her chest and came out her back. After surgery at Doctor's Hospital, she remained in satisfactory condition today.

Batch was pronounced dead at the same hospital from a bullet wound in his heart.

Four miles away in St. Vincent Charity Hospital, her husband, a short order cook, also in satisfactory condition, is recovering from face wounds.

"I hope I can see her soon," Caldwell said from his hospital bed, adding that "this past couple of days has been hell... but now I'm in heaven again."

The dramatic siege at Batch's apartment began when detectives, searching for Mrs. Caldwell, went there Sunday morning.

The officers found Mrs. Caldwell in the kitchen. Standing nearby with a pistol was Batch. He ordered the detectives to leave, saying he would kill her and himself if they didn't.

In the next 27 hours he let police and others enter the apartment at various times. But he wielded his pistol constantly, usually keeping it pointed at the girl's head.

Tiffin Death Ruled Accidental

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP)—Seneca County Coroner Albert O'Halloran ruled accidental death today in the hanging of a 14-year-old boy who was found in a manhole.

O'Halloran said the death of Steven Zuern occurred while the "youth was experimenting in an act of misadventure." He ruled out suicide and said there was no evidence "to indicate homicide."

The boy's body was found by a search party on Kraut Elementary School property just before dark Sunday.

Steven was hanging from a rope that had been tied to the manhole cover handle. The cover was upside down in the manhole.

O'Halloran earlier had ruled out accidental death until he learned youngsters often played around the manhole.

Steven was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Zuern.

Foreign Aid Bill Still Deadlocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. foreign aid program, traditionally a thorny issue in Capitol Hill, has produced a whole new set of frictions this year.

A conference of delegates from both houses is deadlocked over one area of the 1967 aid authorization bill with no sign of compromise in sight. Senate conferees are refusing to yield on provisions adopted in that chamber to cut back on U.S. sales and grants of military equipment to underdeveloped nations.

The House delegation, with administration backing, is trying to eliminate those provisions and substitute compromise approaches.

But a conference Monday, the first in 18 days, broke up in disagreement after an hour's discussion in closed session. Various alternatives were discussed but none was acceptable to both sides.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he would prefer no aid bill at all this year to one that continued at its present level of military aid to underdeveloped nations.

Fulbright and fellow Senate conferees have argued that sales of arms to such countries have helped keep them impoverished by paying for equipment they don't need.

The possibility has been raised in the House that a foreign aid appropriation bill, providing actual funds, will be passed without waiting for the deadlocked authorization measure, which sets policy and spending limits.

But this is viewed on the other side of the Capitol as a pressure tactic designed to convince the Senate conferees to give in on the military aid issue or see themselves bypassed.

Senate sources said that no matter what the House does, the Senate Appropriations Committee would not likely follow a move to bypass the authorization process.

Niece of Top Ohio Labor Leader Slain

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — The niece of one of Ohio's top labor leaders was found slain in a ditch Monday night in Sylvania Township, Wood County, the sheriff's office reported.

She was Karen Kern, 20, of Sylvania, niece of Frank W. King, president of the Ohio AFL-CIO and also a state senator. Her mother, Mrs. Patricia Kern, is a sister of King.

Deputies said the victim appeared to have been shot six times.

The sheriff's office said it had no suspects and had not learned the motive for the killing. Miss Kern lived with her parents.

Miss Kern was first reported missing Sunday. Deputies reported her boyfriend said she called him Sunday and said she had been delayed by car trouble near Beaver Dam in Allen County.

The victim was a secretary for Sylvania elementary schools. Her body was found by a high school student who first noticed it on his way to school, but thought it was a mannequin, deputies said. Her car, a red Volkswagen, was still missing Tuesday morning.

Cincinnati Without Newspapers

CINCINNATI (AP)—This city of 500,000 was without its daily newspapers today for the first time in this century as the result of a strike by the photo engravers' union.

The strike — starting shortly before the beginning of the advertising-rich Christmas season — affected the morning Cincinnati Enquirer and the afternoon Cincinnati Post & Times-Star, which also publishes the Kentucky post.

Both newspapers told their nonstriking employees to report to work as usual today and another bargaining session between the photoengravers and the Cincinnati Newspaper Publishers Association was set for 10 a.m.

About a hundred members of Local 130 of the Lithographers and Photoengravers International Union voted unanimously Monday evening to go on strike. Members of some other mechanical unions refused to cross the picket lines.

The dispute erupted after a bargaining session last Friday. The photoengravers, claiming that weekend work was overtime, refused to come to work and the newspapers have carried no pictures of current happenings since Saturday afternoon.

Patrolmen Nab Jewel Thieves

Officers of the Circleville Highway Patrol apprehended two men Tuesday morning believed involved in a burglary of a Charleston, W. Va., jewelry store.

The men were identified as Paul Anthony Vickrovic and William Jones, both of Dayton. They were arrested by Cpl. Ernest Wigglesworth and Patrolman D. J. Starcher near the Hartman Farm on Route 23 in Franklin County.

Wigglesworth and Starcher were alerted at 8 a. m. that the suspected burglars were in the area by Dispatcher Gregory Stevens, who spotted the truck in South Bloomfield believed used in the burglary. Stevens was returning home after work.

ing the midnight shift at the local post.

The burglary occurred 2 a. m. today. The alleged burglars were seen fleeing the scene in a white panel truck bearing an Ohio license plate. West Virginia authorities alerted Ohio lawmen of the truck.

He identified the two as Kenneth David Stiverson, 23, charged at Mansfield with breaking and entering and assault with intent to kill, and Willie Ray Cole, 22, charged with five counts of burglary and one count of escape in Richland County.

Both men were being held for Richland County while a new jail is being constructed at Mansfield.

Bratton said both men would face additional counts of attempted escape.

Cook Says No To Ohio Go Go

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Liquor Director Donald D. Cook has ordered a halt to obscene performances by Go-Go girls in Ohio's bars and night spots.

He said Tuesday that almost 50 permit holders throughout the state have been cited for allowing "obscene and indecent" performances by the girls. Twelve of the citations were issued in Columbus.

Bar owners receiving citations must appear before the Liquor Control Commission and face possible suspension or loss of their licenses, depending on their past records.

ing the midnight shift at the local post.

The burglary occurred 2 a. m. today. The alleged burglars were seen fleeing the scene in a white panel truck bearing an Ohio license plate. West Virginia authorities alerted Ohio lawmen of the truck.

JONES and Vickovic are both being held in Columbus, pending arrival of authorities from West Virginia.

Jones, implicated in 13 burglaries and illegal entries in the Columbus area, is wanted by authorities there for "jumping bond", the patrol stated.

Wigglesworth and Starcher recovered "several thousand dollars worth of the jewelry," according to a spokesman from the local post.

Reds Shell Saigon Palace; Humphrey, Thieu Unhurt

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong lobbed four shells on grounds of the gaily lighted Independence Palace tonight as President Nguyen Van Thieu entertained Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and 2,000 in-gaugural guests, but hit none of them.

A fifth shell straying from the target, wounded three persons outside. The tube of a 61mm mortar, believed to have been the weapon, was found in a building five blocks from the palace.

Devoting the major part of his inaugural address to the problem of peace for South Vietnam, the 44-year-old president made plain that his offer to talk with the Communists meant no surrender.

Thieu insisted freedom and independence would be defended by his government and the Communist North must learn that aggression will not pay. His strong words made it highly unlikely that Hanoi would find his peace proposals more acceptable than previous offers North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh has rejected.

The appointment of lawyer Nguyen Van Loc as premier was also expected, and was criticized in advance. Those who hoped to see Thieu broaden his government's political base by the appointment of some respected political figure were disappointed.

Loc's chief claim to office appeared to be that he was born in the South and had a close personal relationship with Vice President Ky, the air force commander who has been largely running the government for the past two years as premier. When Ky planned to run for president, Loc was to be his running mate. Then Ky was forced to accept the second spot on Thieu's ticket, leaving Loc to be taken care of.

Meanwhile American and South Vietnamese troops beat back another Communist attempt today to seize the town of Loc Ninh and U.S. Special Forces camp 72 miles north of Saigon in what U.S. officers said was an obvious try for a propaganda victory to counter South Vietnam's presidential inauguration.

U.S. spokesmen said the Communists left 110 bodies on the battlefield after their renewed attempt to overrun the headquarters compound of the district town and the Special Forces camp. This raised the Communist toll to 265 dead in the three-day battle with South Vietnamese troops and two battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division.

Striking in four waves, the Communists managed on the third try to penetrate the perimeter of the military installations but were driven out by the defenders and American artillery within 30 minutes, U.S. headquarters said.

Meanwhile, U.S. fighter-bombers returned to North Vietnam's Hanoi-Haiphong heartland for the seventh straight day Monday, attacking four air fields, a key power plant and a big railroad yard. A U.S. Navy F4 Phantom shot down a MIG17 in an aerial duel between Navy jets and four of the Communist interceptors northeast of Hanoi, the U.S. Command said.

Sen. Mansfield Links Geneva Meet, Bombing

Soviets Urged To Join Britain In New Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criticizing the Soviet Union for rejecting what he termed a new peace move, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicts President Johnson would halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam if the Geneva Conference were reconvened.

Mansfield said in an interview Monday the Soviets are unrealistic in dismissing the possibility of a revived conference could lead to peace in Vietnam.

His statement came in the wake of publication in Moscow of a statement by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Kosygin, in a letter quoted in part in Tass, called "unreal" the notion that a conference revival could lead to peace. Kosygin also said any conference in which the North Vietnamese government and National Liberation Front or Viet Cong did not participate would have no chance of success.

The Soviet leader's statement came in a letter to Alex Bebler, president of the World United Nations Association.

Mansfield said that instead of maintaining a frozen position in regard to revival of the Geneva Conference, which directed a settlement in Laos in 1962, the Soviets should join with Great Britain as cochairmen in calling a new meeting.

"Then they could see what this country's reaction would be toward stopping the bombing," Mansfield said. "I am confident the attacks would end and that President Johnson would be among the first to arrive in Geneva."

Queen Opens Parliament

House of Lords To Be Revamped

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II told the ermine-robed members of Britain's House of Lords today that the Labor government plans to reduce their powers and eliminate their present hereditary basis.

Reform of the Lords, said the queen in her speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament, will enable the upper house "to develop within the framework of a modern parliamentary system."

The queen's speech was not precise on what reforms the government plans and whether future membership in the House of Lords will be by election or appointment. The speech said the government is "prepared to enter into consultations appropriate to a constitutional change of such importance."

The speech, written by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government, was read by the queen as usual in the ornate Lords' chamber to the peers in their robes and coronets, with their ladies in long gowns and jewels. Wilson and his ministers from the House of Commons stood or sat on the steps of the throne.

The queen's speech contained the government's major legislative proposals for the coming session. In addition to the Lords' reform, the Labor government pledged to tighten the nation's gambling laws and extend the scope of laws against racial discrimination.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has ordered a tightening up of its procedures for making small purchases—those penny ante items that add up to millions.

The man responsible is Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., who has been blasting the Department of Defense for allegedly sloppy shopping practices when it comes to small purchases.

His prize exhibit was a gear which he said the Pentagon paid $194.30 for and could instead have purchased from one manufacturer's catalog for $3.43.

"We cannot tolerate flagrant practices such as those demonstrated by Mr. Pike's findings," a spokesman for the Department of Defense said Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union is coming to the defense of a newsletter which the Post Office Department claims is inciting Negro servicemen to "insubordination, disloyalty, refusal of duty, murder and mutiny."

The ACLU's legal director, Melvin L. Wulf, said court action on behalf of Robert F. Williams, publisher of "The Crusader," will be begun within several weeks.

Williams, a Negro, fled a kidnapping charge in Monroe, N.C., six years ago and now lives in Red China.

After his newsletter was banned from the U.S. mails in August, the Post Office Department said a recent issue "encourages Negro soldiers in Vietnam to murder their white fellow soldiers and generally urged them to create unrest and tension among the troops."

Wulf asked the department for a copy of the newsletter and was turned down. The department said it is abiding by its own ban and can't send him one through the mail.

City Fireman Resigns Post

James Robert Armstrong, a member of the Circleville Fire Department, resigned effective today.

Armstrong's resignation was submitted over two weeks ago to Fire Chief Bernard Wolf. No replacement has been named for the vacancy left by Armstrong.

The Circleville Fire Department is presently two men short of being fully staffed. In addition, Tom Miner is serving on a provisional appointment.

The local civil service board has not given examinations for the fire department since Miner was appointed this summer. Chief Wolf said today that if the board planned to give examinations in the near future, he had not been informed of their intentions.

Ohioans Get No Good Entry

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Shell Oil Co. is mailing its Ohio credit card holders entry forms for a $30,000 sweepstakes which it warns is void in the Buckeye State.

State Architect's Plans Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The House Rules Committee gave state architect Carl Bentz the go-ahead today to construct new offices in the southwest court of the Statehouse.

Bentz estimated the cost at $320,000 and said construction would start immediately after adjournment of the Jan. 15 legislative session.

He said construction would be completed in time for the January 1969 session.

The project will provide additional office space for the state auditor, six offices for House committee chairmen and additional hearing rooms for representatives.

Reds Shell Saigon Palace; Humphrey, Thieu Unhurt

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong lobbed four shells on grounds of the gaily lighted Independence Palace tonight as President Nguyen Van Thieu entertained Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and 2,000 inaugural guests, but hit none of them.

A fifth shell straying from the target, wounded three persons outside. The tube of a 61mm mortar, believed to have been the weapon, was found in a building five blocks from the palace.

Devoing the major part of his inaugural address to the problem of peace for South Vietnam, the 44-year-old president made plain that his offer to talk with the Communists meant no surrender.

Thieu insisted freedom and independence would be defended by his government and the Communist North must learn that aggression will not pay. His strong words made it highly unlikely that Hanoi would find his peace proposals more acceptable than previous offers North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh has rejected.

The appointment of lawyer Nguyen Van Loc as premier was also expected, and was criticized in advance. Those who hoped to see Thieu broaden his government's political base by the appointment of some respected political figure were disappointed.

Loc's chief claim to office appeared to be that he was born in the South and had a close personal relationship with Vice President Ky, the air force commander who has been largely running the government for the past two years as premier. When Ky planned to run for president, Loc was to be his running mate. Then Ky was forced to accept the second spot on Thieu's ticket, leaving Loc to be taken care of.

Meanwhile American and South Vietnamese troops beat back another Communist attempt today to seize the town of Loc Ninh and U.S. Special Forces camp 72 miles north of Saigon in what U.S. officers said was an obvious try for a propaganda victory to counter South Vietnam's presidential inauguration.

U.S. spokesmen said the Communists left 110 bodies on the battlefield after their renewed attempt to overrun the headquarters compound of the district town and the Special Forces camp. This raised the Communist toll to 365 dead in the three-day battle with South Vietnamese troops and two battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division.

Sen. Mansfield Links Geneva Meet, Bombing

Soviets Urged To Join Britain In New Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criticizing the Soviet Union for rejecting what he termed a new peace move, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicts President Johnson would halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam if the Geneva Conference were reconvened.

Mansfield said in an interview Monday the Soviets are unrealistic in dismissing the possibility a revived conference could lead to peace in Vietnam.

His statement came in the wake of publication in Moscow of a statement by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Kosygin, in a letter quoted in part in Tass, called "unreal" the notion that a conference revival could lead to peace. Kosygin also said any conference in which the North Vietnamese government and National Liberation Front or Viet Cong did not participate would have no chance of success.

The Soviet leader's statement came in a letter to Alex Bebler, president of the World United Nations Association.

Mansfield said that instead of maintaining a frozen position in regard to revival of the Geneva Conference, which directed a settlement in Laos in 1962, the Soviets should join with Great Britain as cochairmen in calling a new meeting.

"Then they could see what this country's reaction would be toward stopping the bombing," Mansfield said. "I am confident the attacks would end and that President Johnson would be among the first to arrive in Geneva."

He is survived by his widow, Fleta Foreman Hoffman, one son; Dr. Warren Hoffman, Ashville; two brothers, Erville Hoffman, Logan Elm Village and Lawrence Hoffman, 1435 N. Court St., and three grandchildren.

Services will be 2 p.m. Thursday in the Defenbaugh Funeral Home with the Rev. Charles W. Hill officiating. Burial will be in Harrison Twp Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home beginning 1 p.m. Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II told the ermine-robed members of Britain's House of Lords today that the Labor government plans to reduce their powers and eliminate their present hereditary basis.

Reform of the Lords, said the queen in her speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament, will enable the upper house "to develop within the framework of a modern parliamentary system."

The queen's speech was not precise on what reforms the government plans and whether future membership in the House of Lords will be by election or appointment. The speech said the government is "prepared to enter into consultations appropriate to a constitutional change of such importance."

The speech, written by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government, was read by the queen as usual in the ornate Lords' chamber to the peers in their robes and coronets, with their ladies in long gowns and jewels. Wilson and his ministers from the House of Commons stood or sat on the steps of the throne.

The queen's speech contained the government's major legislative proposals for the coming session. In addition to the Lords' reform, the Labor government pledged to tighten the nation's gambling laws and extend the scope of laws against racial discrimination.

Ford Backs Taxpayer Rebellion

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., House minority leader, says U.S. taxpayers are "rebellious against excessive federal spending" and such a rebellion is necessary "to bring federal expenditures back to the level of sanity."

Ford told the 70th annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents Monday that "administration leaders no longer talk about 'The Great Society.' Perhaps this is because our society is more and more that of a nation of agony."

The congressman criticized federal spending, saying it has jumped 80 per cent since 1960, with nondefense spending up 97 per cent.

"We can expect that by the time this decade ends, the federal budget will have doubled from its 1960 level," Ford said.

He said that the House of Representatives' current economy drive is "trying to bring federal spending under control — not just for this fiscal year, but for years to come. Otherwise you will see income taxes go up not only in 1968, but in future years."

Bond was set by Judge Lamb at $1500 each.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has ordered a tightening up of its procedures for making small purchases—those penny ante items that add up to millions.

The man responsible is Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., who has been blasting the Department of Defense for allegedly sloppy shopping practices when it comes to small purchases.

His prize exhibit was a gear which he said the Pentagon paid $194.30 for and could instead have purchased from one manufacturer's catalog for $3.43.

"We cannot tolerate flagrant practices such as those demonstrated by Mr. Pike's findings,"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union is coming to the defense of a newsletter which the Post Office Department claims is inciting Negro servicemen to "insubordination, disloyalty, refusal of duty, murder and mutiny."

The ACLU's legal director, Melvin L. Wulff, said court action on behalf of Robert F. Williams, publisher of "The Crusader," will be begun within several weeks.

Williams, a Negro, fled a kidnapping charge in Monroe, N.C., six years ago and now lives in Red China.

City Fireman Resigns Post

James Robert Armstrong, a member of the Circleville Fire Department, resigned effective today.

Armstrong's resignation was submitted over two weeks ago to Fire Chief Bernard Wolf. No replacement has been named for the vacancy left by Armstrong.

The Circleville Fire Department is presently two men short of being fully staffed. In addition, Tom Miner is serving on a provisional appointment.

The local civil service board has not given examinations for the fire department since Miner was appointed this summer. Chief Wolf said today that if the board planned to give examinations in the near future, he had not been informed of their intentions.

State Architect's Plans Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The House Rules Committee gave state architect Carl Bentz the go-ahead today to construct new offices in the southwest court of the Statehouse.

Bentz estimated the cost at $320,000 and said construction would start immediately after adjournment of the Jan. 15 legislative session.

He said construction would be completed in time for the January 1969 session.

The project will provide additional office space for the state auditor, six offices for House committee chairmen and additional hearing rooms for representatives.

Ohio Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe ruled in July that promotional games are illegal lotteries if participants have to go on commercial premises to obtain entry blanks. Ohio law forbids lotteries.

U.S. Beefs Combat Units By Cutting Back Others

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command has stripped away and carried out a major boost in combat strength without enlarging its logistics manpower, a senior U.S. military official reports.

This is part of a long-term drive by the U.S. Command to increase the ratio of combat to noncombat troops in Vietnam.

During Robert S. McNamara's July visit here the defense secretary ordered Gen. William C. Westmoreland to strip away fat accumulated during the rapid buildup in U.S. forces. Studies aimed at eliminating unnecessary jobs were under way at the time.

Along with reduction of the number of cooks, truck drivers and the like, Army infantry battalions are adding a fourth company, and a new light infantry brigade has landed in Vietnam. This means 14,000 more men to be taken care of by the fewer support troops.

The U.S. Command declined to estimate the dollar savings of the moves, but it probably runs into millions.

The logistics base, however, is expected to start growing again as new major units arrive and President Johnson's order to expand the U.S. strength to about 525,000. At present it is about 468,500.

Because of the difficulty in determining just how many men should be classified as being in combat jobs, the Army says it cannot estimate fairly the present ratio of combat to non-combat men.

However, the reduction of the rear echelon was carried out while the number of combat infantrymen was being increased from about 64,000 to 77,000. The numbers of helicopter crewmen, artillerymen and those in similar jobs also have been boosted. Paring in the rear areas still is going on.

"We're taking a real look at all the soft skills," a high U.S. Army official said. "More jobs will be eliminated after we can judge the impact of what we have already done. We know we can do better."

When a job is eliminated, the man holding it normally is not transferred to a combat job unless he has special training. For combat infantrymen this means advanced infantry schooling geared to Vietnam combat.

When the man in an abolished job rotates home, there is no replacement assigned to fill the slot.

Flamingo Seen Near Ashland

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — An excited Ashland Countyman telephoned the county sheriff's department this weekend. "I just saw a pink buzzard with long skinny legs and neck and long wings," related the distraught Mrs. Verne Runkle of near Ashland.

Dubious deputies wavered between theories of a Halloween prank or a new version of the pink elephant. But they went to investigate anyway.

Sure enough, there was a pink creature in the private lake just north of Ashland. But it turned out to be a pink flamingo, a rare bird in these parts.

Deputies are puzzled as to how the bird, normally found in more tropical climate, came to be in northern Ohio. Last report is that the bird still displays its long-legged pose in the shallow water.

sons for the fat having gotten into the support system in the first place. One is that during a rapid massive buildup it is almost impossible to keep a balanced mix of combat and non-combat personnel. Also, it requires many more men to set up rear-area operations than it does to run them.

One thing that helps the Army command in shifting its non-combat/noncombat ratio is the large number of GIs in Vietnam who ask for transfers from rear-area jobs to go forward.

Precise figures are not available, but the number is said to run in the thousands so far this year.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Nervous Tic Won't Upset Weddings

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married soon, and am facing a big problem. My father has had a nervous tic for years, which causes him to jerk his head back involuntarily every few seconds. He winks one eye when he jerks, which has caused him to be misunderstood by strange women when he walks down the street. (It looks like a gesture which means, "Come along with me.")

Anyway, I know it's customary for a bride to be escorted down the aisle on her father's arm, but Abby, how about this tic of his? All the folks on my side who will be at the wedding know my father and are used to his nervous tic. But how about those on my fiancée's side who live out of town and have never seen my father before?

I want my wedding to be a beautiful solemn affair, and I'm afraid my father might cause a few to laugh. Please advise me.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: How does your father feel about it? If he is self-conscious about his tic, and indicates that he would rather not escort you down the aisle, ask a substitute. (An uncle, cousin, dear friend, or adult brother, if you have one.) But if your father would feel slighted to be denied that privilege, let him. Chances are, your fiancée's family will have been cowed in about your father's tic before the wedding march begins.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I was 13 I have liked Rick, the boy who lives across the street from me. I just turned 16 and Rick is 18. Last year, when I was only 15, Rick asked my mother when I could date. She told him when I reached 16. Well, I have been 16 for two weeks already and Rick hasn't asked me out yet. Maybe he doesn't know I'm 16 now.

Rick had a girl friend, but one of my friends told me he didn't like her that much anymore. What should I do?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Wait. DEAR ABBY: I usually bottle my feelings up inside me so I won't become a nag. My husband works very hard. He's a machinist. Naturally because of his work his clothes get very dirty and greasy. When he comes home, he likes to relax, and I think he should be able to, but he either sits or lies on the front room furniture in his dirty work clothes. How would you handle this? I'm ready to crown him.

JENNIE

DEAR JENNIE: A man's home is his castle, but don't "crown" him. Buy some plastic covers for your furniture. Or use old bedspreads.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow. O, my husband still has a heartbeat, but he has "passed on" in another sense. I can't get any conversation out of him during the dinner hour. He comes to the table and fills up his plate, buffet style, then carries it to the living room to watch television while he eats.

I am not stupid. I am a college graduate, so it's not as though I can't carry on an intelligent conversation.

Should I stick my foot thru the picture tube? Or maybe I should try wearing a wooden cabinet instead of a dress?

I wonder how many other women are in competition with the television set?

DEAR IGNORED: Obviously, your husband finds television more fascinating than your conversation. He is being rude, of course, to desert you at dinner time, but you can't force him to remain and converse with you. And if you could, his attitude would probably be so condescending you'd soon be begging him to go watch television.

U.S. Beefs Combat Units By Cutting Back Others

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command has stripped away and carried out a major boost in combat strength without enlarging its logistics manpower, a senior U.S. military official reports.

This is part of a long-term drive by the U.S. Command to increase the ratio of combat to noncombat troops in Vietnam.

During Robert S. McNamara's July visit here the defense secretary ordered Gen. William C. Westmoreland to strip away fat accumulated during the rapid buildup in U.S. forces. Studies aimed at eliminating unnecessary jobs were under way at the time.

Along with reduction of the number of cooks, truck drivers and the like, Army infantry battalions are adding a fourth company, and a new light infantry brigade has landed in Vietnam. This means 14,000 more men to be taken care of by the fewer support troops.

The U.S. Command declined to estimate the dollar savings of the moves, but it probably runs into millions.

The logistics base, however, is expected to start growing again as new major units arrive and President Johnson's order to expand the U.S. strength to about 525,000. At present it is about 468,500.

Because of the difficulty in determining just how many men should be classified as being in combat jobs, the Army says it cannot estimate fairly the present ratio of combat to non-combat men.

However, the reduction of the rear echelon was carried out while the number of combat infantrymen was being increased from about 64,000 to 77,000. The numbers of helicopter crewmen, artillerymen and those in similar jobs also have been boosted. Paring in the rear areas still is going on.

"We're taking a real look at all the soft skills," a high U.S. Army official said. "More jobs will be eliminated after we can judge the impact of what we have already done. We know we can do better."

When a job is eliminated, the man holding it normally is not transferred to a combat job unless he has special training. For combat infantrymen this means advanced infantry schooling geared to Vietnam combat.

When the man in an abolished job rotates home, there is no replacement assigned to fill the slot.

Flamingo Seen Near Ashland

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — An excited Ashland County telephone county sheriff's department this weekend.

"I just saw a pink buzzard with long skinny legs and neck and long wings," related the distraught Mrs. Verne Runkle of near Ashland.

Dubious deputies wavered between theories of a Halloween prank or a new version of the pink elephant. But they went to investigate anyway.

Sure enough, there was a pink creature in the private lake just north of Ashland. But it turned out to be a pink flamingo, a rare bird in these parts.

Deputies are puzzled as to how the bird, normally found in more tropic climate, came to be in northern Ohio. Last report is that the bird still displays its long-legged pose in the shallow water.

sons for the fat having gotten into the support system in the first place. One is that during a rapid massive buildup it is almost impossible to keep a balanced mix of combat and non-combat personnel. Also, it requires many more men to set up rear-area operations than it does to run them.

One thing that helps the Army command in shifting its non-combat-noncombat ratio is the large number of GIs in Vietnam who ask for transfers from rear-area jobs to go forward.

Precise figures are not available, but the number is said to run in the thousands so far this year.

Dear Abby: Nervous Tic Won't Upset Weddings

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married soon, and am facing a big problem. My father has had a nervous tic for years, which causes him to jerk his head back involuntarily every few seconds. He winks one eye when he jerks, which has caused him to be misunderstood by strange women when he walks down the street. (It looks like a gesture which means, "Come along with me.")

Anyway, I know it's customary for a bride to be escorted down the aisle on her father's arm, but Abby, how about this tic of his? All the folks on my side who will be at the wedding know my father and are used to his nervous tic. But how about those on my fiancée's side who live out of town and have never seen my father before?

I want my wedding to be a beautiful solemn affair, and I'm afraid my father might cause a few to laugh. Please advise me.

UNDECIDED
DEAR UNDECIDED: How does your father feel about it? If he is self-conscious about his tic, and indicates that he would rather not escort you down the aisle, ask a substitute. (An uncle, cousin, dear friend, or adult brother, if you have one.) But if your father would feel slighted to be denied that privilege, let him. Chances are, your fiancée's family will have been cowed in about your father's tic before the wedding march begins.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I was 13 I have liked Rick, the boy who lives across the street from me. I just turned 16 and Rick is 18. Last year, when I was only 15, Rick asked my mother when I could date. She told him when I reached 16. Well, I have been 16 for two weeks already and Rick hasn't asked me out yet. Maybe he doesn't know I'm 16 now.

Rick had a girl friend, but one of my friends told me he didn't like her that much anymore. What should I do?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Wait.
DEAR ABBY: I usually bottle my feelings up inside me so I won't become a nag. My husband works very hard. He's a machinist. Naturally because of his work his clothes get very dirty and greasy. When he comes home, he likes to relax, and I think he should be able to, but he either sits or lies on the front room furniture in his dirty work clothes. How would you handle this? I'm ready to crown him.

JENNIE
DEAR JENNIE: A man's home is his castle, but don't "crown" him. Buy some plastic covers for your furniture. Or use old bedspreads.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow. O, my husband still has a heartbeats, but he has "passed on" in another sense. I can't get any conversation out of him during the dinner hour. He comes to the table and fills up his plate, buffet style, then carries it to the living room to watch television while he eats.

I am not stupid. I am a college graduate, so it's not as tho I can't carry on an intelligent conversation.

Should I stick my foot thru the picture tube? Or maybe I should try wearing a wooden cabinet instead of a dress?

I wonder how many other women are in competition with the television set?

IGNORED
DEAR IGNORED: Obviously, your husband finds television more fascinating than your conversation. He is being rude, of course, to desert you at dinner time, but you can't force him to remain and converse with you. And if you could, his attitude would probably be so condescending you'd soon be begging him to go watch television.

Economy for Others

The U. S. Senate has decided that economy, unlike charity, does not begin at home. Outdoing even the House, the Senate has voted $4.7 billion in public works appropriations.

There's not much chance of relief in conference either since the House and Senate aren't far apart. In fact, the difference is less than $140 million, which is scarcely a drop in the old pork barrel.

More and more it looks as though everybody in Washington is for economy but nobody's going to do much about getting it.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — People with a special ax to grind—in this case, foreign which is not unusual. They have been busy all through American history.

In this capitalistic society, free enterprise system and plenty of people still denounce any form of government interference, free enterprise has never really operated freely.

When the American government began in 1789 the very first piece of legislation passed by the first Congress was a tariff act putting an ax or restrictions on certain imported goods that might compete here with American products.

Down through the years since then Congress has passed a steady stream of tariff acts, lowering or raising as the mood of the country or the need of special interests changed.

In the midst of the depression Congress pulled its biggest boner with the 1930 Smoot-Hawley Act which raised tariffs to their highest point in American history. It was a bad time to do it.

Other countries retaliated by raising their tariffs on imports from America just when American industries and producers, hamstrung by the depression, needed to sell their stuff abroad. This, of course, caused a reaction.

And under President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1934 the United States did an about-face, giving up is high tariff policy to keep out imports and adopting the Trade Agreement Act which called for both sides to make cuts.

This empowered the president to work out agreements with individual countries by which they would reduce their tariffs on American exports and this country could restore its tariffs on imports by as much as 50 per cent.

Congress repeatedly renewed this Trade Agreement Act up to the end of World War II when American thinking turned to a much broader arrangement of tariff agreements among a number of nations.

Congress kept on passing the Trade Agreement Act which, for the protection of American business, had a number of escape clauses letting the United States eliminate or modify an agreement if some American producing group was suffering from foreign competition.

Meanwhile, as had happened before, the mood of the country became more and more protectionist, thus making the Trade Agreement Act look a little dubious as a means for reducing tariffs.

Finally, in 1962 President John F. Kennedy got Congress to put through the Trade Expansion Act whose basic idea—reflecting the desire of American producers at the time—was to expand foreign trade.

While this gave the president more elbow room in making agreements, at the same time it provided many protections for American business, which meant the act in some ways was more liberal, in some more protectionist.

But the idea of multiple agreements grew. And last June the United States and 52 other countries signed an agreement to reduce tariffs on one another, starting next Jan. 1.

By then the American policy of reducing tariffs had reached a point where cuts have averaged 35 per cent on 6,000 items. But the fun began after this latest agreement, which needs no congressional approval, was signed.

A number of U.S. industries and producers complained they were hurting from foreign competition. They turned their lobbyists loose on Congress. And one industry after another—textiles, steel, meat, glass, oil, shoes, lead and zinc among others—went before Congress.

They wanted the quotas—the amount of any certain product permitted to be imported here from their foreign competitors—cut down. President Johnson's administration got all worked up.

It warned Congress that foreign nations would retaliate. The United States now exports almost $4 billion more worth of products each year than is imported. The administration predicted foreign retaliation against the kind of protection now sought here could cost this country $3.5 billion in exports.

Johnson would almost certainly veto any bill requiring quota cuts in a broad, perhaps even in a few, number of imports. But he would be reluctant to veto a Social Security bill. So some advocates of the cuts thought it would be a good idea to tack them on the Social Security measure rather than handling them separately.

Some opponents of the cuts argue they are a cry for help from industries that failed in their own efficiency or in keeping up with technological developments. And they warn that the less competition there is from foreign imports, the more Americans will have to pay for the American products.

But Congress, anxious to get home, is unlikely to do anything this year.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A HEARTLESS, garrulous barber pointed out to Sam Himmell, "Your hair is getting quite gray, sir." Snapped Himmell, "That doesn't surprise me. Can't you work a little faster?"

Reporter Bob Considine tells this one in his book, "It's News To Me." Early in his journalistic career, Bob toiled for the late Cissy Patterson on the old Washington Times-Herald. Shortly after he left her employ to begin his meteoric rise to fame in Manhattan, she phoned him to report that she was furious at her brother, Captain Joe Patterson, over a piece he had authorized in his New York News. She wanted Considine to write a front-page answer she proposed to run under her own signature in the Times-Herald.

Considine worked on it for a month and sent it off. Weeks passed. Finally she explained that she was not going to use it. "I made up with Joe. But I want to pay you for it. How much do you want?" "Nothing at all," maintained Bob. "I'll charge it off to experience." "Well," said Cissy, "Let's settle it this way: I'll give you what you received for your last piece in Cosmopolitan. How much was it?" "Seven hundred and fifty dollars," answered Considine, "but I still wish you'd forget the whole thing." Two days later Considine received $500 from Mrs. Patterson with this note clipped thereto: "Dear Bob: I called Cosmopolitan. Affectionately, Cissy."

It has been discovered that the ad man who coined the phrase "Never underestimate the buying power of the American woman" had been married four times.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

One billion dollars is a lot of money. One thousand million dollars is the astronomical amount of money that Americans alone pour into the jingling pockets of quacks and charlatans.

Mechanical gadgets, useless cures and fad foods earn fortunes for those unscrupulous exploiters of the healthy, the sick, the superstitious, the desperate, the frightened, the confused and the gullible.

The wares of the medical quack are no longer peddled from the back of a horse-drawn buckboard. Now the "purified horse's nest syrup" — cure-all for rheumatism, arthritis, bunions, ulcers and acne — is foisted on the innocent by a glib, well-dressed, fast-talking salesman of the space age.

He travels in high-powered automobiles, trains, planes and directs his mail order campaign from a plush, well-upholstered air-conditioned office, comfortably counting the "sucker money" that pours in. And it does — One Billion Dollars Worth!

The American Medical Association has a full-time department of investigation to track down those who exploit the sick and capitalize on their fears, their monies and their hopes. This department issued a bulletin listing six simple ways of "spotting" the quack:

- 1) He uses a special or "secret" machine or formula he claims can cure disease.
- 2) He guarantees a quick cure.
- 3) He advertises case histories and testimonials to promote his cure.
- 4) He clamors constantly for medical investigation and recognition.
- 5) He claims medical men are persecuting him or are afraid of his competition.
- 6) He tells you that surgery or X-rays or drugs will cause more harm than good.

It is most imperative to beware of any individual or institution that makes extravagant claims of cures by advertising the testimonials of persons that they have allegedly cured. Before-and-after photographs can easily be "doctored up" to mislead the gullible, who are driven into the arms of the quacks by their own fears and innocent trust.

The cancer quack, who has his own private stock of expensive, hard-to-get remedies, flourishes on the panic of those unfortunate who grasp at any straw in their desperation.

Quackery is not limited to the United States alone. In France, too, quackery and fakery is big business. Electric "cancer cures" that cost thousands of dollars apiece are sold to large numbers of misguided people.

Exploitation of the sick occurs all over the world. The astronomical sums spent on quackery is not the most important factor. Worse than robbing the innocent of their money is the robbery and deprivation of the time that might have been used to advantage in the diagnosis, treatment and control of disease.

Your physician is in the best position to safeguard your medical destiny.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A concentration of power among mammoth and growing institutions such as mutual funds is now tending to accentuate stock price changes in a manner reminiscent of the outlawed pools of the 1930s.

This concentrated buying and selling, which is entirely legal, has fundamentally changed the character of the stock market, an Associated Press study has found.

Federal officials, though deeply concerned, seem to be stymied by a lack of funds and outdated regulations in their investigations of this concentration.

Nevertheless, the shift from a marketplace of random public orders to one more nearly dominated by sheer power appears to account for much of the wide, wild and sometimes destructive price swings and heavy volume of today's market the study suggests.

Amidst this heavy volume the very definition of the word "investment" as contrasted to "speculation" has become obscured by mutual funds which buy and sell stocks within weeks in their quest for "performance."

Illustrating the changed conditions are these facts:

1. Mutual funds now control 20 to 30 per cent of the shares of many large corporations, and one-third the value of all shares on the New York Stock Exchange is owned by mutual and pension funds, insurance companies, endowments and bank-administered trusts.
2. More blocks of 10,000 share or more, indicating institutional buying and selling, have crossed the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape this year than in all 1966. In September alone there were more than 57.
3. Mutual funds are turning over their portfolios at the rate of 40 per cent a year. Several performance funds have rates much higher than this—as much as 100 per cent and more a year.

This institutional speculation, William McChesney Martin told the 175th anniversary celebration of the New York Stock Exchange this year, not only is poisonous but could end disastrously.

Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman and a former exchange president, suggested that "this cult of short-run market performance" compares in some ways to the outlawed pools, in which traders created activity to attract buying and push up prices.

"Anyone who invests must realize it is a different business than it was 15 years ago," said Ted Lyman, senior vice president of Putnam Management Co., which administers several large funds.

Lyman refers to individual investors—those who purchase stocks directly rather than through mutual funds—as "do-it-yourself investors."

The stock exchanges have courted both individuals and funds. Individual stock ownership has grown from about 6.5 million or less in 1952, the first year a stockholder census was taken, to more than 22 million now.

Institutions have grown even faster. Since 1945 their assets have risen from $88.6 billion to more than $565 billion. In this time, mutual funds have multiplied their assets, mostly in stocks, 100 times to $4 billion.

Despite these developments, the Securities and Exchange Commission is thwarted to some extent by the lack of an over-all study of the effect on prices of this concentration.

"We're not equipped to do it budgetwise," said Mahlon Frankhauser, SEC regional administrator at New York. "No body is doing an over-all study." But some of the effects seem to be apparent without a study.

In a few hours last Nov. 18 more than 562,000 shares of Fairchild Camera and Instrument Co., were sold, about 20 per cent of all its shares, and the price plunged more than $19 to $106.75.

Was it possible that for no immediately obvious reason thousands of shareholders all decided to sell at once? Or, more likely, was this an effect of concentrated power?

Institutions such as mutual funds, which pool the investment power of 4 million individuals, were heavily involved in Fairchild. When they decided to sell their holdings their action had the impact of millions of decisions.

A day before this extraordinary selling, a meeting was held at Argus Research, a highly regarded wholesaler of investment information to brokers and analysts.

An Argus spokesman explained later that perhaps 75 of these influential clients heard an analyst give a short discourse on integrated circuits, with the emphasis on possible difficulties ahead for Fairchild.

Selling in Fairchild, as well as in other makers of integrated circuits, began the next day. Long term investors, many of them small, read about their losses the following day.

Some mutual funds concede their trading might have a sharp impact on prices, but they insist a Fairchild affair is a rarity. They claim the funds most often feed out their sales a bit at a time to lessen the impact.

Francis Williams, chairman of the Investment Company Institute, a mutual fund trade association, says: "We don't think the activities of the mutual funds and other institutional investors have a substantial impact on the market. It certainly would take a study to prove otherwise."

But the Federal Reserve's Martin said in a speech that in-out trading by institutions tends to create undesirably volatile price fluctuations. "I find this trend disquieting," he said.

The performance trend of in-out trading has now spread through much of the mutual fund industry and is influencing other institutions also. As a result, concentration, activity and volatility may become even more pronounced.

The Big Bands

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Gee, dad, what's so great about that?" asks the teen-ager as his father moons over a record of Benny Goodman's "Sing, Sing, Sing."

Nowhere is there more cleavage in the generation gap than in the field of popular music. Just as the older generation can hear nothing but noise in the electrified music of today, so the youngsters fail to find any magic in the long-ago strains of Goodman, Miller, Dorsey, et al. But the oldsters have their memories. Now such memories can be bolstered by a comprehensive new book called "The Big Bands," by George T. Simon—MacMillan $9.95. The price is steep, but many a middle-aged swing buff will find it worthwhile.

Simon was in town to talk about his book, and he appears to be a splendid choice for chronicling the big-band era. He started playing drums in high school and at Harvard. He adds, "I was good enough to play in the first Glenn Miller band; but then, he was a good friend, and tolerant as well."

Later he turned to writing about bands for the defunct Metronome magazine. From 1935 to 1955 he reviewed all the great ones. Hence "The Big Bands" is an intensely personal volume, but authoritative as well. In recent years, Simon worked as a television consultant on band shows and now he's executive director of the Recording Academy, which gives out the Grammys.

Like others of the swing generation, Simon lamented the passing of the big-band business. What killed it? Several things, he explained. "The musicians helped, by their attitude. During the war musicians were scarce, and those who remained civilians asked for exorbitant salaries. Those who had been in the service didn't want to travel after the war" and that made it hard to organize a band.

"The sentimentality during the war gave rise to singers like Sinatra, Jo Stafford and Perry Como, and music became more of a vocalists' business. Also, the musicians' strike against record companies kept bands from recording for two years."

"Because of economic factors many of the ballrooms in this country were turned into bowling alleys and other things. Television arrived, and people didn't go out of the house for entertainment any more."

"Will big bands return? Not until there are places for them to play."

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

How Will the Cat Jump?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The "ship of pols," carrying the governors to and from the Virgin Islands, has deposited its precious cargo at its home port, and there are certainly twenty governors who are asking themselves, "Was this trip necessary?"

What the voyage revealed was the impotence of the governors to make any real decision that might influence the coming Presidential nominations. Certainly there was nobody among the Democrats to say that LBJ could possibly be replaced as the party standard bearer for 1968. The Republicans did have plenty of chances for politicking, and there was talk about taking the play away from the so-called "Congressional Republicans" at the Republican governors' conference that is coming up at Palm Beach in December. But, with the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries still many months away, one can safely predict that the governors will converge on Florida in a familiar state of indecision, if not outright paralysis.

The reason is that there are more chiefs than Indians sitting in the Republican State capitals across the country. Some of the liberal governors are committed to sticking with the Romney candidacy until the first primaries show which way the wind is blowing. Nelson Rockefeller may very well be sincere about now wishing to be President (he must be tired of shell-ing out millions for politics), but even if he has a secret hankering for the nomination he wouldn't dare to go the route of the primaries as long as the "high malice quotient" of the conservatives persists. Rockefeller and his followers can only wait to see whether Romney blows his chances in New Hampshire and Wisconsin, which means, of course, that they will have nothing new or startling to say at Palm Beach.

Economy for Others

The U. S. Senate has decided that economy, unlike charity, does not begin at home. Outdoing even the House, the Senate has voted $4.7 billion in public works appropriations.

There's not much chance of relief in conference either since the House and Senate aren't far apart. In fact, the difference is less than $140 million, which is scarcely a drop in the old pork barrel.

More and more it looks as though everybody in Washington is for economy but nobody's going to do much about getting it.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — People with a special ax to grind—in this case, foreign which is not unusual, they have been busy all through American history.

In this capitalistic society, free enterprise system and plenty of people still denounce any form of government interference, free enterprise has never really operated freely.

When the American government began in 1789 the very first piece of legislation passed by the first Congress was a tariff act putting an ax or restrictions on certain imported goods that might compete here with American products.

Down through the years since then Congress has passed a steady stream of tariff acts, lowering or raising as the mood of the country or the need of special interests changed.

In the midst of the depression Congress pulled its biggest boner with the 1930 Smoot-Hawley Act which raised tariffs to their highest point in American history. It was a bad time to do it.

Other countries retaliated by raising their tariffs on imports from America just when American industries and producers, hamstrung by the depression, needed to sell their stuff abroad. This, of course, caused a reaction.

And under President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1934 the United States did an about-face, giving up is high tariff policy to keep out imports and adopting the Trade Agreement Act which called for both sides to make cuts.

This empowered the president to work out agreements with individual countries by which they would reduce their tariffs on American exports and this country could restore its tariffs on imports by as much as 50 percent.

Congress repeatedly renewed this Trade Agreement Act up to the end of World War II when American thinking turned to a much broader arrangement of tariff agreements among a number of nations.

Congress kept on passing the Trade Agreement Act which, for the protection of American business, had a number of escape clauses letting the United States eliminate or modify an agreement if some American producing group was suffering from foreign competition.

Meanwhile, as had happened before, the mood of the country became more and more protectionist, thus making the Trade Agreement Act look a little dubious as a means for reducing tariffs.

Finally, in 1962 President John F. Kennedy got Congress to put through the Trade Expansion Act whose basic idea—reflecting the desire of American producers at the time—was to expand foreign trade.

While this gave the president more elbow room in making agreements, at the same time it provided many protections for American business, which meant the act in some ways was more liberal, in some more protection.

But the idea of multiple agreements grew. And last June the United States and 52 other countries signed an agreement to reduce tariffs on one another, starting next Jan. 1.

By then the American policy of reducing tariffs had reached a point where cuts have averaged 35 percent on 6,000 items. But the fun began after this latest agreement, which needs no congressional approval, was signed.

A number of U.S. industries and producers complained they were hurting from foreign competition. They turned their lobbyists loose on Congress. And one industry after another—textiles, steel, meat, glass, oil, shoes, lead and zinc among others—went before Congress.

They wanted the quotas—the amount of any certain product permitted to be imported here from their foreign competitors—cut down. President Johnson's administration got all worked up.

It warned Congress that foreign nations would retaliate. The United States now exports almost $4 billion more worth of products each year than is imported. The administration predicted foreign retaliation against the kind of protection now sought here could cost this country $3.5 billion in exports.

Johnson would almost certainly veto any bill requiring quota cuts in a broad, perhaps even in a few, number of imports. But he would be reluctant to veto a Social Security bill. So some advocates of the cuts thought it would be a good idea to tack them on the Social Security measure rather than handling them separately.

Some opponents of the cuts argue they are a cry for help from industries that failed in their own efficiency or in keeping up with technological developments. And they warn that the less competition there is from foreign imports, the more Americans will have to pay for the American products.

But Congress, anxious to get home, is unlikely to do anything this year.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A HEARTLESS, garrulous barber pointed out to Sam Himmell, "Your hair is getting quite gray, sir." Snapped Himmell, "That doesn't surprise me. Can't you work a little faster?"

Reporter Bob Considine tells this one in his book, "It's News To Me." Early in his journalistic career, Bob told for the late Cissy Patterson on the old Washington Times-Herald. Shortly after he left her employ to begin his meteoric rise to fame in Manhattan, she phoned him to report that she was furious at her brother, Captain Joe Patterson, over a piece he had authorized in his New York News. She wanted Considine to write a front-page answer she proposed to run under her own signature in the Times-Herald.

Considine worked on it for a month and sent it off. Weeks passed. Finally she explained that she was not going to use it. "I made up with Joe. But I want to pay you for it. How much do you want?" "Nothing at all," maintained Bob. "I'll charge it off to experience." "Well," said Cissy. "Let's settle it this way: I'll give you what you received for your last piece in Cosmopolitan. How much was it?" "Seven hundred and fifty dollars," answered Considine, "but I still wish you'd forget the whole thing." Two days later Considine received $500 from Mrs. Patterson with this note clipped thereto: "Dear Bob: I called Cosmopolitan. Affectionately, Cissy."

It has been discovered that the ad man who coined the phrase "Never underestimate the buying power of the American woman" had been married four times.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

One billion dollars is a lot of money. One thousand million dollars is the astronomical amount of money that Americans alone pour into the jingling pockets of quacks and charlatans.

Mechanical gadgets, useless cures and fad foods earn fortunes for those unscrupulous exploiters of the healthy, the sick, the superstitious, the desperate, the frightened, the confused and the gullible.

The wares of the medical quack are no longer peddled from the back of a horse-drawn buckboard. Now the "purified hornet's nest syrup" — cure all for rheumatism, arthritis, bunions, ulcers and acne — is foisted on the innocent by a glib, well-dressed, fast-talking salesman of the space age.

He travels in high-powered automobiles, trains, planes and directs his mail order campaign from a plush, well-upholstered air-conditioned office, comfortably counting the "sucker money" that pours in. And it does — One Billion Dollars Worth!

The American Medical Association has a full-time department of investigation to track down those who exploit the sick and capitalize on their fears, their monies and their hopes. This department issued a bulletin listing six simple ways of "spotting" the quack:

1) He uses a special or "secret" machine or formula he claims can cure disease.

2) He guarantees a quick cure.

3) He advertises case histories and testimonials to promote his cure.

4) He clamors constantly for medical investigation and recognition.

5) He claims medical men are persecuting him or are afraid of his competition.

6) He tells you that surgery or X-rays or drugs will cause more harm than good.

It is most imperative to beware of any individual or institution that makes extravagant claims of cures by advertising the testimonials of persons that they have allegedly cured. Before-and-after photographs can easily be "doctored up" to mislead the gullible, who are driven into the arms of the quacks by their own fears and innocent trust.

The cancer quack, who has his own private stock of expensive, hard-to-get remedies, flourishes on the panic of those unfortunate who grasp at any straw in their desperation.

Quackery is not limited to the United States alone. In France, too, quackery and fakery is big business. Electric "cancer cures" that cost thousands of dollars apiece are sold to large numbers of misguided people.

Exploitation of the sick occurs all over the world. The astronomical sums spent on quackery is not the most important factor. Worse than robbing the innocent of their money is the robbery and deprivation of the time that might have been used to advantage in the diagnosis, treatment and control of disease.

Your physician is in the best position to safeguard your medical destiny.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A concentration of power among mammoth and growing institutions such as mutual funds is now tending to accentuate stock price changes in a manner reminiscent of the outlawed pools of the 1930s.

This concentrated buying and selling, which is entirely legal, has fundamentally changed the character of the stock market, an Associated Press study has found.

Federal officials, though deeply concerned, seem to be stymied by a lack of funds and outdated regulations in their investigations of this concentration.

Nevertheless, the shift from a marketplace of random public orders to one more nearly dominated by sheer power appears to account for much of the wide, wild and sometimes destructive price swings and heavy volume of today's market the study suggests.

Amidst this heavy volume the very definition of the word "investment" as contrasted to "speculation" has become obscured by mutual funds which buy and sell stocks within weeks in their quest for "performance."

Illustrating the changed conditions are these facts:

1. Mutual funds now control 20 to 30 per cent of the shares of many large corporations, and one-third the value of all shares on the New York Stock Exchange is owned by mutual and pension funds, insurance companies, endowments and bank-administered trusts.

2. More blocks of 10,000 share or more, indicating institutional buying and selling, have crossed the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape this year than in all 1966. In September alone there were more than 57.

3. Mutual funds are turning over their portfolios at the rate of 40 per cent a year. Several performance funds have rates much higher than this—as much as 100 per cent and more a year.

This institutional speculation, William McChesney Martin told the 175th anniversary celebration of the New York Stock Exchange this year, not only is poisonous but could end disastrously.

Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman and a former exchange president, suggested that "this cult of short-run market performance" compares in some ways to the outlawed pools, in which traders created activity to attract buying and push up prices.

"Anyone who invests must realize it is a different business than it was 15 years ago," said Ted Lyman, senior vice president of Putnam Management Co., which administers several large funds.

Lyman refers to individual investors—those who purchase stocks directly rather than through mutual funds—as "do-it-yourself investors."

The stock exchanges have courted both individuals and funds. Individual stock ownership has grown from about 6.5 million or less in 1952, the first year a stockholder census was taken, to more than 22 million now.

Institutions have grown even faster. Since 1945 their assets have risen from $88.6 billion to more than $565 billion. In this time, mutual funds have multiplied their assets, mostly in stocks, 100 times to $4 billion.

Despite these developments, the Securities and Exchange Commission is thwarted to some extent by the lack of an over-all study of the effect on prices of this concentration.

"We're not equipped to do it budgetwise," said Mahlon Frankhauser, SEC regional administrator at New York. "No body is doing an over-all study." But some of the effects seem to be apparent without a study.

In a few hours last Nov. 18 more than 562,000 shares of Fairchild Camera and Instrument Co., were sold, about 20 per cent of all its shares, and the price plunged more than $19 to $106.75.

Was it possible that for no immediately obvious reason thousands of shareholders all decided to sell at once? Or, more likely, was this an effect of concentrated power?

Institutions such as mutual funds, which pool the investment power of 4 million individuals, were heavily involved in Fairchild. When they decided to sell their holdings their action had the impact of millions of decisions.

A day before this extraordinary selling, a meeting was held at Argus Research, a highly regarded wholesaler of investment information to brokers and analysts.

An Argus spokesman explained later that perhaps 75 of these influential clients heard an analyst give a short discourse on integrated circuits, with the emphasis on possible difficulties ahead for Fairchild.

Selling in Fairchild, as well as in other makers of integrated circuits, began the next day. Long term investors, many of them small, read about their losses the following day.

Some mutual funds concede their trading might have a sharp impact on prices, but they insist a Fairchild affair is a rarity. They claim the funds most often feed out their sales a bit at a time to lessen the impact.

Francis Williams, chairman of the Investment Company Institute, a mutual fund trade association, says: "We don't think the activities of the mutual funds and other institutional investors have a substantial impact on the market. It certainly would take a study to prove otherwise."

But the Federal Reserve's Martin said in a speech that in-out trading by institutions tends to create unduly volatile price fluctuations. "I find this trend disquieting," he said.

The performance trend of in-out trading has now spread through much of the mutual fund industry and is influencing other institutions also. As a result, concentration, activity and volatility may become even more pronounced.

The Big Bands

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Gee, dad, what's so great about that?" asks the teen-ager as his father moons over a record of Benny Goodman's "Sing, Sing, Sing."

Nowhere is there more cleavage in the generation gap than in the field of popular music. Just as the older generation can hear nothing but noise in the electrified music of today, so the youngsters fail to find any magic in the long-ago strains of Goodman, Miller, Dorsey, et al.

But the oldsters have their memories. Now such memories can be bolstered by a comprehensive new book called "The Big Bands," by George T. Simon—MacMillan $9.95. The price is steep, but many a middle-aged swing buff will find it worthwhile.

Simon was in town to talk about his book, and he appears to be a splendid choice for chronicling the big-band era. He started playing drums in high school and at Harvard. He adds, "I was good enough to play in the first Glenn Miller band; but then, he was a good friend, and tolerant as well."

Later he turned to writing about bands for the defunct Metronome magazine. From 1935 to 1955 he reviewed all the great ones. Hence "The Big Bands" is an intensely personal well. In recent years, Simon worked as a television consultant on band shows and now he's executive director of the Recording Academy, which gives out the Grammys.

Like others of the swing generation, Simon lamented the passing of the big-band business. What killed it? Several things, he explained. "The musicians helped, by their attitude. During the war musicians were scarce, and those who remained civilians asked for exorbitant salaries. Those who had been in the service didn't want to travel after the war" and that made it hard to organize a band.

"The sentimentality during the war gave rise to singers like Sinatra, Jo Stafford and Perry Como, and music became more of a vocalists' business. Also, the musicians' strike against record companies kept bands from recording for two years."

"Because of economic factors many of the ballrooms in this country were turned into bowling alleys and other things. Television arrived, and people didn't go out of the house for entertainment any more."

"Will big bands return? Not until there are places for them to play."

How Will the Cat Jump?

The "ship of pols," carrying the governors to and from the Virgin Islands, has deposited its precious cargo at its home port, and there are certainly twenty governors who are asking themselves, "Was this trip necessary?"

What the voyage revealed was the impotence of the governors to make any real decision that might influence the coming Presidential nominations. Certainly there was nobody among the Democrats to say that LBJ could possibly be replaced as the party standard bearer for 1968. The Republicans did have plenty of chances for politicking, and there was talk about taking the play away from the so-called "Congressional Republicans" at the Republican governors' conference that is coming up at Palm Beach in December. But, with the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries still many months away, one can safely predict that the governors will converge on Florida in a familiar state of indecision, if not outright paralysis.

The reason is that there are more chiefs than Indians sitting in the Republican State capitals across the country. Some of the liberal governors are committed to sticking with the Romney candidacy until the first primaries show which way the wind is blowing. Nelson Rockefeller may very well be sincere about now wishing to be President (he must be tired of shelling out millions for politics), but even if he has a secret hankering for the nomination he wouldn't dare to go the route of the primaries as long as the "high malice quotient" of the conservatives persists. Rockefeller and his followers can only wait to see whether Romney blows his chances in New Hampshire and Wisconsin, which means, of course, that they will have nothing new or startling to say at Palm Beach.

Boomlet for Sen. Griffin Started by Lone Supporter

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan is the first to admit it isn't much of a ground swell, that decided minor movement to draft him for the Republican presidential nomination. But it's the only one he has.

There's a man in East Detroit, the home territory of Michigan Gov. George Romney, dispatching postcards urging a Griffin draft in 1968. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., got one of the cards and sent it along to Griffin with a note reminding his fellow first-term colleague: "George isn't going to like this."

George Romney is on the verge of declaring himself a candidate for the White House nomination in 1968. And Griffin is a Romney man.

"George Romney has several problems these days, but this is certainly not one of them," Griffin said. "Whatever ground swell there is still a long way underground."

Draft Griffin postcards began turning up in the senator's office six weeks ago. They were signed by Richard J. O'Halloran of East Detroit. The message: "The people of Michigan should draft the Hon. Robert P. Griffin for the R. nomination for president. U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin has youth and experience and would be a winner." The cards were relayed to Griffin by colleagues in the Senate and the House, where he formerly served. Members of Congress apparently formed a large part of the mailing list.

A Griffin aide called O'Halloran, and said the man told him he is 74, a retired industrial plant worker, and turned out the post card messages on a printing press in his basement.

"We don't even know this fellow personally," Griffin said. The senator said he has not discussed the gentle draft with Romney. "I never took it seriously enough."

Griffin is serving his first elective term in the Senate after winning five terms in the House. He was elected to the Senate a year ago in a Michigan GOP triumph which helped establish Romney's credentials as a candidate who could help pull other Republicans to victory.

College Hit By Protest

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Roving patrols of National Guardsmen watched over the Grambling College campus today as student protest leaders tried to organize a mass exodus.

"We expect at least 2,000 students to leave Grambling College," said Willie Zanders, a 20-year-old Amite, La., senior heading the demonstrations. The enrollment is 4,200.

The uproar at this predominantly Negro north Louisiana school is over student leader charges that the administration concentrates on athletics at the expense of academics.

"The college is accredited, has an excellent faculty and insists on passing grades from all members of athletic teams," said Dr. Ralph Waldo Emerson Jones, Grambling president.

"Grambling college will not be intimidated by a power confrontation."

Boomlet for Sen. Griffin Started by Lone Supporter

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan is the first to admit it isn't much of a ground swell, that decided minor movement to draft him for the Republican presidential nomination. But it's the only one he has.

There's a man in East Detroit, the home territory of Michigan Gov. George Romney, dispatching postcards urging a Griffin draft in 1968. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., got one of the cards and sent it along to Griffin with a note reminding his fellow first-term colleague: "George isn't going to like this."

George Romney is on the verge of declaring himself a candidate for the White House nomination in 1968. And Griffin is a Romney man.

"George Romney has several problems these days, but this is certainly not one of them," Griffin said. "Whatever ground swell there is still a long way underground."

Draft Griffin postcards began turning up in the senator's office six weeks ago. They were signed by Richard J. O'Halloran of East Detroit. The message: "The people of Michigan should draft the Hon. Robert P. Griffin for the R. nomination for president. U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin has youth and experience and would be a winner."

The cards were relayed to Griffin by colleagues in the Senate and the House, where he formerly served. Members of Congress apparently formed a large part of the mailing list.

A Griffin aide called O'Halloran, and said the man told him he is 74, a retired industrial plant worker, and turned out the post card messages on a printing press in his basement.

"We don't even know this fellow personally," Griffin said. The senator said he has not discussed the gentle draft with Romney. "I never took it seriously enough."

Griffin is serving his first elective term in the Senate after winning five terms in the House. He was elected to the Senate a year ago in a Michigan GOP triumph which helped establish Romney's credentials as a candidate who could help pull other Republicans to victory.

College Hit By Protest

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Roving patrols of National Guardsmen watched over the Grambling College campus today as student protest leaders tried to organize a mass exodus.

"We expect at least 2,000 students to leave Grambling College," said Willie Zanders, a 20-year-old Amite, La., senior heading the demonstrations. The enrollment is 4,200.

The uproar at this predominantly Negro north Louisiana school is over student leader charges that the administration concentrates on athletics at the expense of academics.

"The college is accredited, has an excellent faculty and insists on passing grades from all members of athletic teams," said Dr. Ralph Waldo Emerson Jones, Grambling president. "Grambling college will not be intimidated by a power confrontation."

Use of Marijuana Fast Becoming National Problem

By HAL COOPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is known as pot, boo, brass, tea and marijuana.

On the streets of Greenwich Village, the flower children smoke it openly and urge others to do the same.

In Vietnam, more U. S. servicemen are being court-martialed for smoking marijuana than for any other single major offense.

In San Diego, Calif., a police spokesman said a fourth of the high school students in San Diego County smoke marijuana.

In Iowa, police round up bands of teen-agers seeking to harvest marijuana growing wild.

The situation has stirred debate across the nation.

Is marijuana dangerous to health? Should the penalties for possessing it be eased or stiffened? Should its use be legalized?

At a conference in South Lake Tahoe, Calif., Judge Arthur L.

Alarcon of the Los Angeles Superior Court said:

"A few years ago the marijuana user who came to the court's attention was usually a member of a minority group from a slum area with a poverty-level family background.

"Today, the judge sees an increasing number of marijuana users from good families, students with above average grades and without a prior record of delinquency."

Bob Schmidt, a student leader at Sacramento State College, offered this theory:

"It is indicative of the entire disillusionment, the entire frustration, of our generation against what we feel have been lies told to us...on marijuana as well as other issues.

"We have been told it is an addictive narcotic, told it leads to the use of heroin, told it is physically destructive. We found these were lies."

A girl marijuana user in Bismarck, N.D., asked "Why do people drink? Why does a drink really taste good now and then? Marijuana has the same effect, only it's not as habit forming as alcohol."

Dr. James L. Goddard, director of the Food and Drug Administration, shocked a lot of people when the subject of marijuana came up during a news conference at the University of Minnesota.

"Whether marijuana is a more dangerous drug than alcohol is debatable," Dr. Goddard said. "I don't happen to think it is."

He added that he felt the penalties for possession of marijuana should be repealed, while retaining prison sentences for selling the stuff.

Henry L. Giordano, the U.S. narcotics commissioner, disagrees. He told a congressional committee earlier this year that marijuana "is not, as some people say, less dangerous than alcohol or less than smoking tobacco. Some way we have got to get this across to the public."

Under federal law, first of fenders caught in possession of marijuana may be sentenced to 2 to 10 years in prison. Some state laws are even tougher. In Ohio the maximum penalty is 15 years.

The government's National Institute of Mental Health is studying the effects of marijuana and hopes to come up with authoritative findings in about two years. A lot of people object to waiting that long.

A certain amount of pressure has developed for the revision of laws pertaining to the troublesome weed.

The Southern Methodist University student newspaper said it should be legalized, arguing that the laws "keep pot on a bootleg level, in all likelihood not hurting its sale but only aiding the pusher."

A majority of students who took part in a referendum at Sacramento State College favored making "the sale and possession of marijuana subject only to the same regulations as now apply to the sale and possession of alcohol and tobacco."

The Yale University Daily News polled the freshman class and found that 53 per cent believed the use of marijuana should be legalized. Another 30 per cent disagreed; the rest were undecided.

Massachusetts laws dealing with marijuana were attacked as unconstitutional by lawyers for two men charged in Boston with possession and conspiracy to the narcotic law.

A doctor called by the defense testified that he had studied 200 marijuana users and found they suffered no physical damage.

Plans to challenge constitutionality of the Ohio state law on marijuana were announced by William Davis, vice president of the Columbus branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"My specific objection to the Ohio law is that it classifies marijuana as a narcotic drug," said Davis. "This is arbitrary and unreasonable.

"A narcotic creates a narcosis characterized by an absence of pain, but marijuana does not create this type of effect."

There have been rumors that the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare was considering a recommendation that possession of marijuana be removed from the felony category.

"I do understand there are people in the department who feel that way," commented John M. Finlator, director of its Bureau of Drug Abuse Control.

"But whether anybody is going to present a paper is conjecture.

"If that were to be done our position would be that the manufacture, transport and sale of marijuana should remain a felony. But there is no law against its use and there should not be any. The government tries to keep away from making laws to regulate people's morals."

In San Diego, Calif., a group called PAN (Parents Against Narcotics) began selling a kit featuring a pellet which when burned simulates the odor of a lighted marijuana cigarette. The idea is to teach parents to recognize the characteristic smell.

Iowa, where marijuana grows wild in many areas, faced a problem in identifying the plant. More than a score of youths have been arrested for possession of marijuana harvested from these patches.

"I suspect that at least 98 per cent of the farmers and other people in Iowa can't identify it," said Paul Reis, state narcotics control chief. "I know I can't and I have been walking around in woods and fields all my life."

"Obviously somebody is teaching these kids how to identify it. If they can learn, I think the rest of us can learn. I'm sure we would have 100 per cent cooperation in destroying it."

once people know what it is."

The border state of Arizona also has a special problem—the proximity of Mexico, source of much of the marijuana peddled in Western America. One variety regarded as particularly potent is called "Acapulco Gold."

Capt. George Irwin, a U.S. customs agent, said hippie types returning across the border from visits to Mexico receive special attention.

"We figure when we see youngsters dressed like hippies they're good candidates for marijuana smugglers," said Irwin. "But we have seen people come through who were as neat as anybody and they might have marijuana all over the place. We have to figure there can be marijuana in any car which crosses."

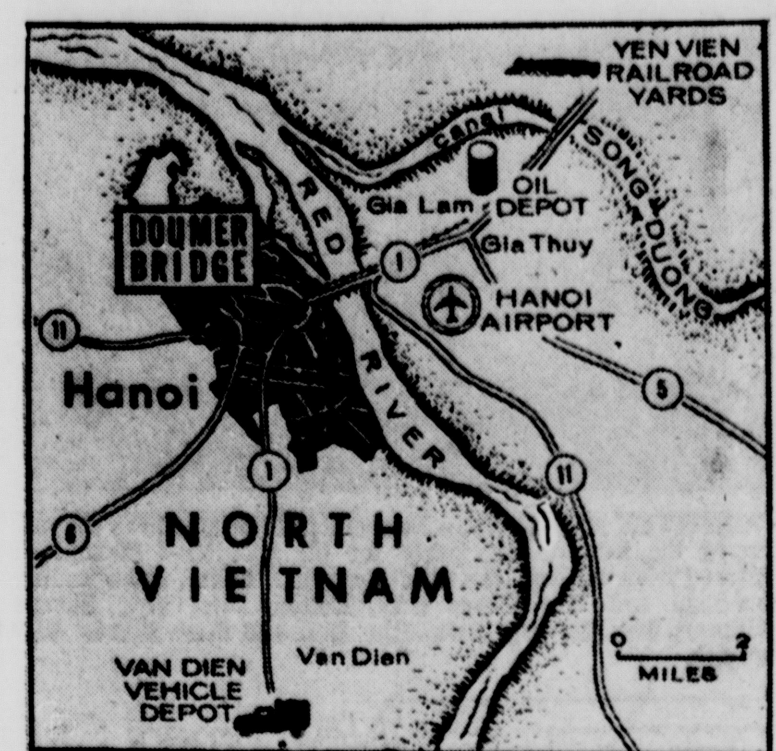

A high ranking New York police spokesman who declined to be identified said it might look as though pot were on sale freely in Greenwich Village but explained that the city narcotics bureau was concentrating on "the dealers, pushers, sellers, the higher-ups."

"We're not going after every little customer," the spokesman said.

A recent Gallup Poll conducted for the Reader's Digest magazine on 426 college campuses indicated that about 6 per cent of students questioned had tried or were using marijuana. There are about 6 million U.S. college students.

Women's Witching Crew Turns House into Horror

By MARY ELLEN MYRENE
Associated Press Writer

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Forty housewives in this plus Seattle suburb will band together in a broken-down shack this Halloween to terrify children in the name of charity.

It's an annual spoof on spooks sponsored by the Overlake Service League, 500 women who have been using their wits to raise money for good causes since 1911.

In this case, the project involves turning housewives into hags, putting them in squalid houses and charging people 25 cents each to see them. Last year, 18,000 paid and the league raised $5,000 for impoverished families.

The project is billed as House Haunting, and after five seasons the ladies are getting proficient at it.

The first problem was to find a house with potential and no price tag. This year's seven-room specimen was donated by a Bellevue contractor who eventually will rip down the building.

For now, it's the women who have smashing ideas.

Armed with hammers, saws and crowbars, they have made a few basic modifications—like turning a second-story window into the front door. The stairway was built by another contractor.

General Chairman Dorothy McCormick, with the help of a 13-woman committee, has done some frightful redecorating on the gloomy two-story structure.

Over-all ugliness was enhanced by covering walls and ceilings with black paper. The corners thrive with spiders and bats. Watched-up women double as child comforters when things get a bit too convincing.

Separate dramas unfold in each room. Hansel and Gretel are boiled in an upstairs bedroom and right next door, a witch doctor brews a tasty dish called people. Downstairs, the mad doctor performs a messy ectomy on the dining room table and a fuzzy five-foot spider peers out of what might have been a closet.

Other distractions are the Pirate's Cave, the Witches of Oz and the Man of Oz. All are animated—either by women who work in two-hour shifts or by improvised power units.

The house is open daily during the week prior to Halloween night, capping one year of planning and a week of actual construction.

When it's over, the witches return home with a familiar problem—how to dress up their houses for Christmas.

Protestants Give Views On Synod

NEW YORK (AP) — Protestant leaders today voiced both appreciation and some disappointment at results of the just-concluded meeting of Roman Catholicism's new international synod of bishops in Rome.

Representatives of several denominations saw potential ecumenical gains in some of the actions recommended, but they said further steps still were needed to put mixed marriages on an equitable footing.

On that matter, Charles Parlin, a Manhattan attorney and Methodist observer-delegate just returned from Rome, said both Protestants and Catholic lay leaders were "disappointed that the synod didn't go further."

However, he added, "even though it only inched along, the fact that there was a synod and that it listened to the laity to a limited extent is a history-making and very hopeful synod."

2 Policemen Plead Guilty

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Charles Price, 30, became the second of two former Board men patrolmen to plead guilty to two charges of possession of stolen property when he entered the plea Monday just before his trial was to begin.

Sentencing was deferred, pending a probation report.

William Huff, 30, pleaded guilty last Monday to two charges of receiving stolen property and one charge of auto theft. He also has not been sentenced.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes announced today the appointment of James F. Shumaker, Nelsonville attorney, as Athens County judge to succeed George Schoonover who died last Monday. The appointment is effective immediately.

Martins Ferry Has School

Lancaster Also Having Classes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

School officials in the Ohio River community of Martins Ferry planned to have classes for the first time in a week today, even though boycotting teachers planned to stay off the job.

"I don't know where I'm going to get them, but we will try to man all schools Tuesday," said School Supt. John Pickens, who spent Monday trying to round up substitute teachers to conduct classes.

Members of the Martins Ferry Classroom Teachers Association — at odds with the school board in a pay dispute — have not worked since last Tuesday and the city's 3,000 students have not had classes since.

In Lancaster, 30 miles southeast of Columbus, school teachers involved in a pay dispute remained on the job.

The Lancaster School Board scheduled a meeting for 5:30 a.m. Tuesday in a move to secure funds that possibly could be used for raises for the city's 365 teachers.

The Lancaster School Board has offered $400 across-the-board annual raises to the teachers. But the local teachers association claims the teachers are entitled to additional money under the supplemental school bill approved by the legislature.

The board called the early morning meeting in efforts to adopt a resolution qualifying the city for the funds. The action, under law, must be taken before midnight Tuesday.

Her body was found by her teen-age daughter, Nancy.

Mrs. Tietjan was divorced from Paul L. Tietjan, a J&L vice president in Pittsburgh, 15 years ago.

Bandit Holds Up Cincy Bank Branch

CINCINNATI (AP) — A lone bandit, described as a Negro 25 to 30 years old, held up a teller at the Findlay branch of the Provident Savings Bank Monday and fled with an undetermined amount of money.

Police pointed out there were a number of similarities to Monday's holdup and that on July 20 in which a bandit got $2,000.

In both instances the holdup man was a Negro wearing sun glasses and carrying a brown paper bag. In both instances he also approached Mrs. Wilma Reid, a teller, with a green counter check in his hand.

Sen. Young Urges Rusk To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stephen Young, D-Ohio, called Monday for the resignation of Secretary of State Dean Rusk, saying such a move "should be welcomed at home and abroad."

Young, in attacking administration policies, charged Rusk with the "ludicrous issuance of one loophole-ridden justification after another" for the Vietnam war.

tions, in parks and other public places.

The arrivals say Communist authorities forbid people to take pictures of the hippie-like Red Guards.

One Chinese seaman who stayed in China for more than two months said: "All Chinese hippie-lands are strictly off limits to foreign visitors."

While the American hippies advocate love and nonviolence, the Chinese ones are known for their militancy. And they steal food and loot, according to the travelers.

Clashes between rival Red Guard gangs in China have been reported frequently.

Recently the Communist authorities ordered all Red Guards to return to their schools, which were closed in the summer of 1966. But, the arrivals say, in many schools neither teachers nor students turned up.

"The teachers are afraid of vengeful action from students, while the students, after more than a year of free traveling and comparatively easy life, are reluctant to go back to schools where some kind of discipline must be kept," one source said.

He said many Chinese hippies have no homes to go back to because "many parents were liquidated during the current power struggle in China."

Red Chinese Mob Misses Macao Bishop

MACAO (AP) — Several hundred young Chinese Communists smashed their way into the office of the Roman Catholic bishop of Macao Tuesday. A church spokesman said the bishop slipped away just ahead of the mob.

For more than two hours, the young Communists claimed they had taken Bishop Paulo Jose Tavares prisoner and were going to starve him until he signed an agreement permitting Communist political activity in Macao's Catholic schools, something the bishop has repeatedly declared he will not permit.

During all that time, a diocesan spokesman told newsmen, the bishop was in the cathedral next door to his office-residence building.

When the mob broke through the gates and surged into the residence, the bishop was in his back flower garden. He slipped out a back gate and into the cathedral, where he "waited and meditated" until the mob left more than two hours later, his spokesman said.

The mob posted guards at the entrance to the residence and refused to let any one in or out of the building. From time to time, members of the mob appeared on the steps of the building and shouted that they were holding the bishop and were going to starve him into submission.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Demonstrations twice a day are planned for the duration of a five-day jail sentence for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and three other Negro ministers, the Rev. T.Y. Rogers says.

Rogers, a civil rights leader, said Monday night at least two marches per day will be held in support of King, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy of Atlanta, the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker of New York and the Rev. A.D. King of Louisville, Ky., who are serving a jail sentence on contempt charges.

The four ministers were arrested by Jefferson County sheriff's deputies Monday afternoon when their plane landed in Birmingham.

Miami Mob Figure Slain; Man Held

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Miami underworld figure who police say is known as "the Enforcer" was shot and killed today as he entered a North Bay Village restaurant.

Police said Thomas Altamura was cut down as he walked into the Place for Steak Restaurant in the causeway city between Miami and Miami Beach.

A short time later, a sheriff's department spokesman said Anthony "Big Tony" Esperti surrendered himself to detectives at a Miami street corner in connection with the shooting. Esperti was in the company of an attorney.

Altamura, 53, had been called before numerous grand juries during the last 10 years in connection with the shooting, racketeering, narcotics and contract murders.

Detectives said Esperti followed Altamura into the lobby of the eating place and blazed away five times with a .38-caliber pistol.

"Witnesses said there wasn't even an exchange of words between them," an officer said.

Altamura was hit twice in the head. One bullet plowed through an upturned hand and into his neck.

Police said Esperti, 37, was the apparent target of a bomb which exploded in a Miami nightclub Sept. 23. He was uninjured. Authorities said Esperti has a record of arrests on charges of armed robbery and extortion.

Witnesses said Altamura's killer drove away from the restaurant in the company of a woman. Esperti was alone when surrendered by his lawyer.

Edward W. Cole Takes GM Reins

By A.F. MAHAN Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Back in 1914, 5-year-old Ed Cole climbed into a 1908 Buick on his father's farm in Marne, Mich., released the handbrake and sent the car rolling into a tree.

The damage was slight, and the scolding the curious kid got didn't dampen his enthusiasm for the horseless carriage.

Now, 53 years later, Edward Nicholas Cole is president of the General Motors Corp.

Cole's election climaxed a GM career that began in 1929 when he enrolled in the General Motors Institute at Flint, Mich., under sponsorship of the corporation's Cadillac division. The job into which he steps paid James M. Roche, the new chairman, $730,000 in salary and bonuses last year.

Like Roche before him, Cole carries no college diploma into the president's office. Roche's education came via correspondence courses. Cole's ended at General Motors Institute when Cadillac called him out before graduation and assigned him to a special engineering project.

Known as an engineering genius, Cole personally was responsible for the basic design concept of the Chevrolet Corvair, a light-weight, rear-engine car.

He is genial and articulate and is known about the GM building in Detroit as a man who has a cheery "hello" for everyone, including the elevator operators and the cleaning crews that dust up at night.

A vice president since 1956, when he was named general manager of the Chevrolet division, Cole had been an executive vice president since 1965 with jurisdiction over all the general staff activities of the corporation.

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP)—Seven persons were re-indicted Monday by a special session of the Wayne County Grand Jury on charges of alleged conspiracy to defraud the state.

Re-indicted were Pearl E. Mosier, former business manager of Apple Creek State Hospital near here; Louis T. Carter, president of the Wooster Lumber Co.; Ralph Long, a former partner in a Wooster appliance store; Robert Smetzer and Robert Hiller, employees of the lumber company, and Sidney Adelman and Mrs. Rita M. Cooper, partners of Kaven Co., a store in Canton.

Mrs. Cooper and Adelman live in Canton, the others live in Wooster.

Previous indictments against the seven were dismissed by Wayne County Common Pleas Judge Adrian W. Miller in a hearing Aug. 31 on motions by defense attorneys that the indictments failed to allege "the doing of any acts to effect the object of conspiracy."

The seven have been charged with "conspiring to purchase certain items of personal property, which items would be paid for by the state of Ohio public monies and which items would be for the personal use of Pearl Mosier."

Pomona Grange Slated

The fall session of Pomona Grange is scheduled 11 a.m. Saturday at the 4-H and Grange Building. Washington Grange will host the session.

A serious sign in the progression of alcoholism is the need for an "eye-opener" before beginning the day.

Dayton Couple Blasts State

Claim Retarded Child Mistreated

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A day-ton couple has charged that their retarded son lost 65 pounds during more than 11 months of confinement at several state institutions.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Forsha attacked, in particular, the Gallipolis State Institute. Their 18-year-old son, Stanley, was discharged from there last Saturday.

"He is starved," the father said Monday, "and we want everyone to know what kind of care these children get at that place."

"We knew something was the matter when we received a letter last week that Stanley was tired, had a sore throat and felt bad," Forsha claimed.

But Dr. Joseph Freidinger, acting superintendent at Gallipolis, reported the boy weighed 75 pounds when admitted July 18 and dropped to 64 pounds by Oct. 1.

"He had to be spoon fed and according to the institute he was given dietary supplements to help maintain his weight," added John McElroy, aide to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

McElroy added that while at Gallipolis, the boy had a sore throat and was given antibiotics. He should have remained there for further treatment of the ailment but his parents took him home, McElroy added.

The youth, according to McElroy, was admitted to Orient State Institute last June 29 as a nonambulatory, paralyzed patient and was transferred to Gallipolis in July.

Wirtz Praises Cleveland Project

CLEVELAND (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz says Cleveland's Project AIM-JOBS "is the showpiece of our attempts to meet" the problem of finding a million jobs for unemployed persons.

Wirtz, in Cleveland Monday to tour the project, told a luncheon audience of some 800 businessmen and community leaders that Cleveland has some 5,000 unemployed persons. He said AIM-JOBS has plans to place 2,000 of those persons in private industry and 1,000 in government jobs by next June.

Mrs. Twins, a Sioux Indian, was convicted Monday.

Red Chinese Mob Misses Macao Bishop

MACAO (AP) — Several hundred young Chinese Communists smashed their way into the office of the Roman Catholic bishop of Macao Tuesday. A church spokesman said the bishop slipped away just ahead of the mob.

For more than two hours, the young Communists claimed they had taken Bishop Paulo Jose Tavares prisoner and were going to starve him until he signed an agreement permitting Communist political activity in Macao's Catholic schools, something the bishop has repeatedly declared he will not permit.

During all that time, a diocesan spokesman told newsmen, the bishop was in the cathedral next door to his office-residence building.

When the mob broke through the gates and surged into the residence, the bishop was in his back flower garden. He slipped out a back gate and into the cathedral, where he "waited and meditated" until the mob left more than two hours later, his spokesman said.

The mob posted guards at the entrance to the residence and refused to let any one in or out of the building. From time to time, members of the mob appeared on the steps of the building and shouted that they were holding the bishop and were going to starve him into submission.

The four ministers were arrested by Jefferson County sheriff's deputies Monday afternoon when their plane landed in Birmingham.

Miami Mob Figure Slain; Man Held

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Miami underworld figure who police say is known as "the Enforcer" was shot and killed today as he entered a North Bay Village restaurant.

Police said Thomas Altamura was cut down as he walked into the Place for Steak Restaurant in the causeway city between Miami and Miami Beach.

A short time later, a sheriff's department spokesman said Anthony "Big Tony" Esperti surrendered himself to detectives at a Miami street corner in connection with the shooting. Esperti was in the company of an attorney.

Altamura, 53, had been called before numerous grand juries during the last 10 years in connection with the shooting. Esperti, a racketeer, narcotics and contract murders.

Detectives said Esperti followed Altamura into the lobby of the eating place and blazed away five times with a .38-caliber pistol.

"Witnesses said there wasn't even an exchange of words between them," an officer said.

Altamura was hit twice in the head. One bullet plowed through an upthrown hand and into his neck.

Police said Esperti, 37, was the apparent target of a bomb which exploded in a Miami nightclub Sept. 23. He was uninjured. Authorities said Esperti has a record of arrests on charges of armed robbery and extortion.

Witnesses said Altamura's killer drove away from the restaurant in the company of a woman. Esperti was alone when surrendered by his lawyer.

Edward W. Cole Takes GM Reins

By A.F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Back in 1914, 5-year-old Ed Cole climbed into a 1908 Buick on his father's farm in Marne, Mich., released the handbrake and sent the car rolling into a tree.

The damage was slight, and the scolding the curious kid got didn't dampen his enthusiasm for the horseless carriage.

Now, 53 years later, Edward Nicholas Cole is president of the General Motors Corp.

Cole's election climaxed a GM career that began in 1929 when he enrolled in the General Motors Institute at Flint, Mich., under sponsorship of the corporation's Cadillac division. The job into which he steps paid James M. Roche, the new chairman, $730,000 in salary and bonuses last year.

Like Roche before him, Cole carries no college diploma into the president's office. Roche's education came via correspondence courses. Cole's ended at General Motors Institute when Cadillac called him out before graduation and assigned him to a special engineering project.

Known as an engineering genius, Cole personally was responsible for the basic design concept of the Chevrolet Corvair, a light-weight, rear-engine car.

He is genial and articulate and is known about the GM building in Detroit as a man who has a cheery "hello" for everyone, including the elevator operators and the cleaning crews that dust up at night.

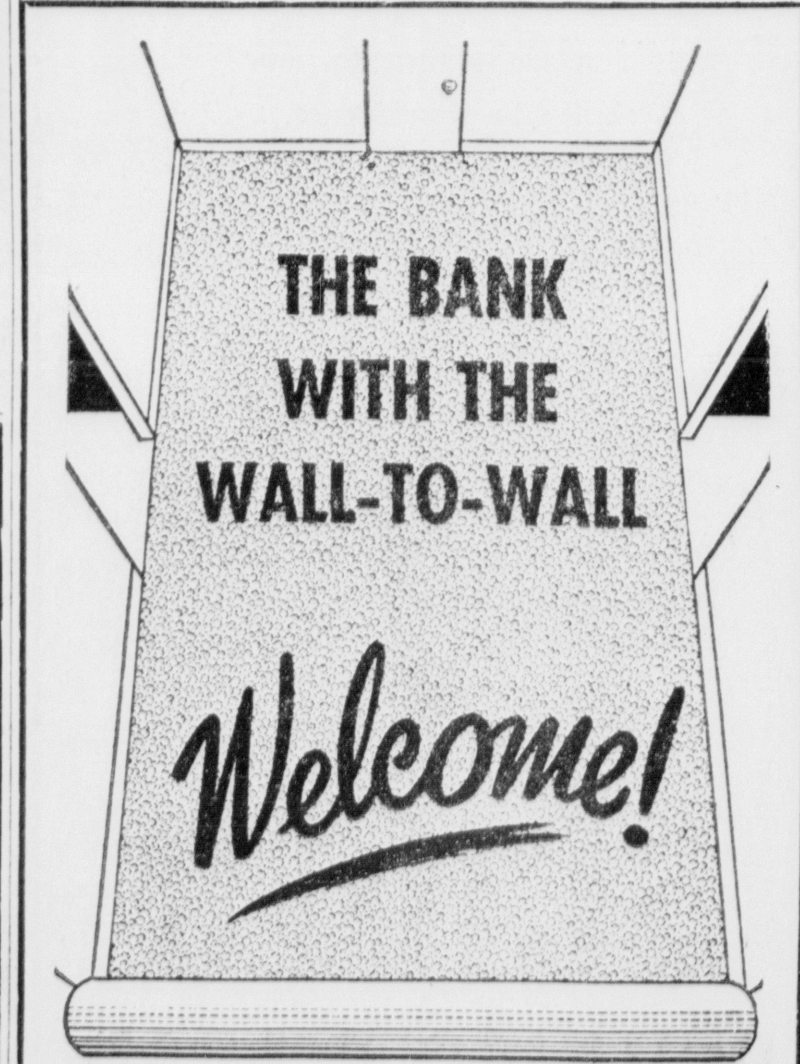

A vice president since 1956, when he was named general manager of the Chevrolet division, Cole had been an executive vice president since 1965 with jurisdiction over all the general staff activities of the corporation.

Save Picture For Widower

CLEVELAND (AP) — Walter Sinerman, an 82-year-old widower, refused to leave the porch of his burning house in suburban Parma Monday until someone went back inside and rescued a picture of his wife.

Asst. Fire Chief John Kerschbaum dashed back into the house, looking for a desk photo. He couldn't find the small picture he was looking for—only a 7-foot-by-3-foot oil portrait on the living room wall. He carried it out.

The painting was of Mrs. Julia Sinterman. It was painted in Germany in 1905, when she was 19. She died six years ago.

Dayton Couple Blasts State

Claim Retarded Child Mistreated

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A Dayton couple has charged that their retarded son lost 65 pounds during more than 11 months of confinement at several state institutions.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Forsha attacked, in particular, the Gallipolis State Institute. Their 18-year-old son, Stanley, was discharged from there last Saturday.

"He is starved," the father said Monday, "and we want everyone to know what kind of care these children get at that place."

"We knew something was the matter when we received a letter last week that Stanley was tired, had a sore throat and felt bad," Forsha claimed.

But Dr. Joseph Freidinger, acting superintendent at Gallipolis, reported the boy weighed 75 pounds when admitted July 13 and dropped to 64 pounds by Oct. 1.

"He had to be spoon fed and according to the institute he was given dietary supplements to help maintain his weight," added John McElroy, aide to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

McElroy added that while at Gallipolis, the boy had a sore throat and was given antibiotics. He should have remained there for further treatment of the ailment but his parents took him home, McElroy added.

The youth, according to McElroy, was admitted to Orient State Institute last June 29 as a nonambulatory, paralyzed patient and was transferred to Gallipolis in July.

Red and Black Gridders Move Up in AP Class AA Poll

Circleville Given 62 Points by AP For Eighth Place

Circleville moved up two notches in the Associated Press Class AA grid poll to eighth place this week.

It is the highest rating a Tiger team has had since 1949 when they were picked eighth in the final International News Service high school poll of the season.

Now defunct, the INS poll had Circleville in ninth place for four consecutive weeks prior to the last rating. Circleville was also rated ninth in the final Associated Press poll that year.

In 1962, the Circleville football team was rated ninth near the end of the season in the AP poll, but dropped to 11th in the final rating of the season.

The 1949 team was coached by Steve Brudzinski, CHS industrial arts teacher who was recently named to the Bowling Green State University sports Hall of Fame. The 1962 CHS team was coached by Carl Benhase, now head coach at Portsmouth High School.

Stuebenville and Upper Arlington head into the season's homestretch still 1-2 in the Associated Press' weekly high school football ratings.

The Big Red protected their first place lead last Friday with a convincing 32-19 decision over Weirton, West Virginia's second-ranked scholastic power.

Coach Abe Bryan's club collected 186 points, eight more than Arlington's Golden Bears, who kept the pressure on with a 76-0 romp over Worthington.

And title-conscious Cincinnati Roger Bacon stayed in contention by pounding Fort Wayne Bishop Luers, 34-0. The Queen City school holds third place on 154 points.

The top three leaders all boast perfect 8-0 records but Stuebenville risks its unblemished mark and its lofty position Friday in a home skirmish against No. 4 Massillon (7-1).

The Tigers knocked the Big Red out of championship consideration last year by upsetting Stuebenville.

Dover (8-0) is fifth followed by Shelby (8-0), Sandusky (7-1), Circleville (8-0), Toledo St. Francis (6-1) and newcomer Cincinnati Princeton (6-1-1).

The biggest surprise last weekend was Alliance's 20-14 triumph over Canton McKinley that knocked the Bulldogs from fourth to 16th place.

In Class A, Versailles clung to the top spot in the small school division but runnerup Portsmouth Notre Dame closed the gap to 12 points.

Green Bay Overcomes Jim Hart

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Green Bay won the football game, but St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart made believers of the Packers.

The world champion Packers used two fourth-quarter touchdowns to overcome a brilliant performance by the 23-year-old Hart and whipped the Cardinals 31-23 Monday night in a National Football League game.

"We're glad to get out of that one alive," sighed Green Bay halfback Elijah Pitts after the game.

Although it rained much of the day in St. Louis, the downpour slowed to a mist during most of the game.

Green Bay turned an intercepted pass and a 93-yard kickoff return into touchdowns to offset Hart's performance. The young quarterback passed for two touchdowns and completed 16 of 29 passes for 317 yards.

Bart Starr, the veteran Packers' quarterback, connected on 11 of 26 for 117 yards and one touchdown.

Parseghian Gets His Wish; Irish Among Top 10

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ara Parseghian got his wish today, and Southern California got the No. 1 spot again in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

Resting nine spots below the unbeaten Trojans, in 10th place, was Notre Dame, last year's national champion which had tumbled from the Top Ten by losing two of its first five games.

But the Irish defeated Michigan State 24-12 last Saturday and now are back among the elite, an achievement that makes Coach Parseghian happy.

Wheeling Downs To Have Races

CHARLESTON, W. Va., (AP) — The West Virginia Racing Commission announced Monday it has approved a 41-day horse race meeting starting Jan. 1 for Wheeling Downs Track, closed since December 1962.

Commission Chairman Joseph P. Condry made the announcement when he and the other two commissioners appeared before the Board of Public Works to present the racing commission budget for next fiscal year.

The Wheeling track closed after fire destroyed much of the plant. The facilities have been rebuilt.

Condry said track owner, James F. Edwards, also owner of Waterford Park, eventually plans to make Wheeling Downs a harness racing operation.

But the Jan. 1-Feb. 16 racing dates approved by the commission are for flat racing. Condry said a switch to harness racing would require legislative action to change the existing racing law.

Anderson Leads American Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dan Anderson watched his New Jersey teammates battle the Kentucky Colonels on even terms for little more than one period, and then he got off the bench to remedy the situation.

The 6-foot-10 center entered the game with 10:36 remaining in the second quarter, broke a 32-32 tie by making a foul shot. Anderson went on to score 10 more points and grab 12 rebounds as the Americans built up a 59-50 halftime lead en route to a 114-101 American Basketball Association game victory.

In the only other ABA game, New Orleans whipped Pittsburgh 128-99 at Memphis, Tenn. There were no National Basketball Association games.

Hunt Seeks Long Lease

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs' American Football League team, has offered to pay over $52 million for a 99-year lease on the proposed twin-stadium Jackson County sports complex.

Hunt would form an operating company to control the entire layout — including the football and baseball stadiums with their removable roof, parking, concessions, and a tract that could be developed for auto racing.

The company would provide office services, advertising, public relations, promotion and season ticket sales for both the Chiefs and the new American League baseball team Kansas City will have in 1969.

The organization would pay $750,000 a year for the original 40-year lease, a 20-year renewal option at $500,000 a year, a second renewal option at $375,000 a year, and a 19-year renewal option for $250,000 a year.

That would total $52,250,000 over the 99 years.

Jackson County voters approved a $43 million bond issue last June to build the sports complex, scheduled for completion in 1970.

Green Bay Overcomes Jim Hart

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Green Bay won the football game, but St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart made believers of the Packers.

The world champion Packers used two fourth-quarter touchdowns to overcome a brilliant performance by the 23-year-old Hart and whipped the Cardinals 31-23 Monday night in a National Football League game.

"We're glad to get out of that one alive," sighed Green Bay halfback Elijah Pitts after the game.

Although it rained much of the day in St. Louis, the downpour slowed to a mist during most of the game.

Green Bay turned an intercepted pass and a 93-yard kickoff return into touchdowns to offset Hart's performance. The young quarterback passed for two touchdowns and completed 16 of 29 passes for 317 yards.

Bart Starr, the veteran Packers' quarterback, connected on 11 of 26 for 117 yards and one touchdown.

On Frank Ryan

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns physician is waiting to make a decision on whether quarterback Frank Ryan will be able to play next Sunday.

Ryan suffered an injury to his right arm in the game with the New York Giants last Sunday. Dr. Vic Ippolito said Monday that no decision can be made until Wednesday or Thursday on Ryan's availability for the Sunday game against the Steelers in Pittsburgh.

Parseghian Gets His Wish; Irish Among Top 10

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ara Parseghian got his wish today, and Southern California got the No. 1 spot again in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

Resting nine spots below the unbeaten Trojans, in 10th place, was Notre Dame, last year's national champion which had tumbled from the Top Ten by losing two of its first five games.

But the Irish defeated Michigan State 24-12 last Saturday and now are back among the elite, an achievement that makes Coach Parseghian happy.

Wheeling Downs To Have Races

CHARLESTON, W. Va., (AP) — The West Virginia Racing Commission announced Monday it has approved a 41-day horse race meeting starting Jan. 1 for Wheeling Downs Track, closed since December 1962.

Commission Chairman Joseph P. Condry made the announcement when he and the other two commissioners appeared before the Board of Public Works to present the racing commission budget for next fiscal year.

The Wheeling track closed after fire destroyed much of the plant. The facilities have been rebuilt.

Condry said track owner, James F. Edwards, also owner of Waterford Park, eventually plans to make Wheeling Downs a harness racing operation.

But the Jan. 1-Feb. 16 racing dates approved by the commission are for flat racing. Condry said a switch to harness racing would require legislative action to change the existing racing law.

Anderson Leads American Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dan Anderson watched his New Jersey teammates battle the Kentucky Colonels on even terms for little more than one period, and then he got off the bench to remedy the situation.

The 6-foot-10 center entered the game with 10:36 remaining in the second quarter, broke a 32-32 tie by making a foul shot. Anderson went on to score 10 more points and grab 12 rebounds as the Americans built up a 59-50 halftime lead en route to a 114-101 American Basketball Association game victory.

In the only other ABA game, New Orleans whipped Pittsburgh 128-99 at Memphis, Tenn. There were no National Basketball Association games.

Talking about the rankings after the Michigan State contest, Parseghian said:

"We have no conference championship to play for and no bowl game to shoot at. All we can do is get into the Top Ten rankings. That's our only goal, and the boys are doing a good job."

Southern California continues to do a good job, too. The Trojans won their seventh game by whipping Oregon 28-6 and were rewarded with all 43 first-place votes in the latest poll.

The Trojans' Los Angeles neighbor, UCLA, didn't play but had no trouble holding onto its No. 2 spot.

Colorado, one of the two Top Ten teams to lose last Saturday, skidded from third to ninth. Houston, the other loser, dropped from ninth to the also-ran group. Oklahoma State edged Colorado 10-7, and Mississippi nipped Houston 14-13.

The four teams behind Colorado last week each climbed one spot, but unbeaten Indiana made the biggest gain of all, rising from 10th to seventh after crushing Arizona 42-7 for its sixth victory.

Tennessee moved up to third, unbeaten North Carolina State to fourth, Georgia to fifth and Purdue to sixth. Wyoming remained No. 8.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8-etc. basis:

1. Sou. Calif. (43) 430
2. UCLA 367
3. Tennessee 305
4. No. Carolina St. 288
5. Georgia 217
6. Purdue 206
7. Indiana 172
8. Wyoming 112
9. Colorado 86
10. Notre Dame 35

Hunt Seeks Long Lease

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs' American Football League team, has offered to pay over $52 million for a 99-year lease on the proposed twin-stadium Jackson County sports complex.

Hunt would form an operating company to control the entire layout — including the football and baseball stadiums with their removable roof, parking, concessions, and a tract that could be developed for auto racing.

The company would provide office services, advertising, public relations, promotion and season ticket sales for both the Chiefs and the new American League baseball team Kansas City will have in 1969.

The organization would pay $750,000 a year for the original 40-year lease, a 20-year renewal option at $500,000 a year, a second renewal option at $375,000 a year, and a 19-year renewal option for $250,000 a year.

That would total $52,250,000 over the 99 years.

Jackson County voters approved a $43 million bond issue last June to build the sports complex, scheduled for completion in 1970.

White Sox Set Milwaukee Games

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — There will be 10 nights of major league baseball in Milwaukee next season, and a Milwaukee group says it has new hope for a more permanent arrangement after that.

Chicago White Sox owner Arthur Allyn announced Monday his American League team will play nine regular season games at Milwaukee County Stadium and one exhibition contest against the National League Chicago Cubs next year.

The Circleville High School Booster Club will meet 8 p. m. Wednesday in the school cafeteria.

The booster club has scheduled a dance Saturday at the 4-H and Grange Building.

Hayes Burns Midnight Oil Over MSU Game

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —
Woody Hayes is putting in overtime this week trying to figure out a way for his Buckeyes to upset Michigan State Saturday.
Hayes, whose 17-year tenure at the Buckeye helm outdistances all previous Ohio coaches, must have set some sort of record for brevity at his Monday press luncheon.

The Buckeye boss spent three minutes at the luncheon explaining that pictures of the Notre Dame — Michigan State game last Saturday had arrived late and he wanted to go over the film very carefully.

He skipped lunch—possibly because of digestive trouble in the wake of a 17-13 loss to Illinois—said the Bucks were in pretty good shape physically and reported no significant lineup changes for the Spartan clash.

"If there are any changes, we're not sure what they'll be,"

Hayes said, and departed.

The veteran Big Ten mentor appears headed for his second straight losing campaign and its no secret that a victory over the Spartans would salvage something for his wounded pride.

The Bucks show a 2-3 record and their 1-2 mark in the conference has shattered any Rose Bowl dreams they entertained.

Despite an unbelievable 2-4 log, the Spartans of Coach Duffy Daugherty still have a shot at a trip to the coast. In Big Ten play, the Spartans have whipped Michigan 34-0 and lost to Minnesota 21-0.

Scout Esco Sarkkinen said the big question this week is who will be in the Michigan State cast.

Daugherty's troops are injury-riddled but the six players (four of them starters) who were suspended for the Notre Dame game, will be back in action against Ohio. That figured.

If quarterback Jim Raye is healed sufficiently from bruised ribs to go at full tilt, the Bucks could be in for a long afternoon.
Raye can do it all and probably will see some action.

The Spartans still have the quick backs in Dwight Lee, La-Marr Thomas and Bob Apisa,
Lee tops the rushers with 321 yards in 77 tries and four touchdowns. Thomas has gained 192 in 39 rushes, Apisa 158 in 38

efforts and Raye has picked up 151 yards in 51 runs.

Raye also has hit on 29 of 68 passes for 411 yards and three touchdowns while reserve caller Bill Feraco has completed 23 of 49 for 267 yards and one score.

Tight end Allen Brenner tops the receivers with 16 grabs for 304 yards and three touchdowns. Halfback Frank Waters has caught 14 for 153 yards.

The Spartans lead the series
5-2 and won a thriller at Ohio
Stadium last year, 11-8.

World Series Payoff Small

NEW YORK (AP)—Buy junior a football helmet instead of a baseball glove for his next birthday. The eventual payoff could be bigger for him.

The St. Louis Cardinals—baseball variety, not football—and the Boston Red Sox got the word Monday from Commissioner William D. Eckert's office on their winning World Series shares.

The seven-game victory was worth a mere $8,314.81 to each Cardinal and $5,115.23 for each losing Boston Red Sox.

Those are pale figures compared with recent World Series payoffs. The winning share was the smallest since the New York Yankees collected $7,389.13 for beating Cincinnati in 1961. And it was the smallest losing share since the 1952 Brooklyn Dodgers picked up $4,200.64 apiece.

Bobby Hull Near Scoring Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The next goal Bobby Hull scores will make him the highest scoring left wing in National Hockey League history.

Chicago's blond bomber hit three times last week and zoomed into a tie for the NHL scoring lead with Montreal's Yvan Courmoyer. Each has 13 points—Hull on nine goals and four assists and Courmoyer on six goals and seven assists.

Hull, who has surpassed hockey's once impregnable 50-goal plateau in each of the last two seasons, now has 379 career goals and is tied with Ted Lindsay for the all-time lead among left wingers.

National Horse Show Under Way

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Horse Show got under way in Madison Square Garden today, with Great Britain favored to win most of the international jumping events and a thick pall hanging over the United States Equestrian Team.

Four of the top horses of the U.S. team are injured and will be unavailable for duty. They include Good Twist, White Lightning, Fru and Tomboy.

Red Sox Sign Darrell Johnson

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox announced today the signing of former major league catcher-outfielder Darrell Johnson as pitching coach to succeed Sal Maglie, released after the World Series.

Johnson, 40, played with the St. Louis Browns, Chicago White Sox, Baltimore Orioles, New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds.

South Africa has three Henning brothers who golf. Harold and Allan Henning are playing in the United States this year.

Sealed bids will be received by the Director of Public Safety of the City of Circleville, Ohio, at the office of the Chief of Police of said city until 12:00 o'clock noon November 15, 1967, and then publicly opened and read for the purchase by the City of Circleville of a New Package Deal Police Cruiser, according to the plans and specifications on file in the said office. In determining the lowest and best bid, consideration will be given by the city to the trade-in allowance that prospective bidder will allow the city for a 1966 Chevrolet four-door sedan police cruiser.

Each bid must contain the full name of every person or company interested in the same, and be accompanied by a bond in the sum of Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) to the satisfaction of the director, or a certified check on some solvent bank in the same amount, as a guarantee that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and its performance properly secured. Should any bid be rejected such check will be forthwith returned to the bidder, and should any bid be accepted such check will be returned to the bidder upon the proper execution and securing of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:

This is the only way I can express the anger and disappointment I felt after attending the so-called "Meet the Candidates" night held last night.

There were quite a few people there, obviously interested in hearing issues debated or at least to hear the opinions expressed by the different candidates as to why they want to be elected and what they intend to do for the City of Circleville and Pickaway County.

However, much to my surprise and amazement not one definite opinion was uttered and, believe it or not, questions from the floor were not invited. What in the "sam-hill" was the point?

Support the children of Circleville, and vote for the school tax levy. We are already facing partial state control. Let's support our school locally to avoid federal control.

A vote against the school levy could be a vote against the successful future of your child, grandchild, niece, nephew or neighbor for, under the present operating budget these children may not be adequately trained for the future. We are all involved. Many of our teachers have between thirty and forty children in one classroom. When one teacher has this many students there isn't any extra time for the slow learner or fast learner. All the teacher can do is direct her attention to the average student and hope for the best. Discipline is a problem in a crowded classroom. There isn't any extra money left for science equipment. And a good knowledge of science is very important to the student in today's world. These are only a few of the needs that I've been made aware of as a PTA worker and as a mother of a student.

We are already receiving partial state and federal aid. State and federal control increases with the amount of aid we receive. Our tax dollar pays for so much more when we raise the money locally. Don't be misled in thinking that these federal hand outs from Washington are free gifts to our area. These dollars are yours and mine, whether they come from income tax or some hidden tax. We send our money to Washington, pay someone down there to tell us how to spend it, and have it sent back to us again. Think how much more this procedure costs us! And we'll have less to say then about how this money is spent than we do now. This cost of education must be paid. If it is your pocket book that's hurting, it will save you money if you pay the cost of education locally.

Let's support our children and get the most for our tax dollar. Vote for the school tax levy.

Dear Editor:

Last night, Oct. 30, there was exemplified in the Stoutsville community along with Washington Township one of the finest examples of cooperation and fine community spirit that we have ever witnessed.

It was the night of the Stoutsville Volunteer Fireman's first Halloween Parade. From the time that the parade started at 6:30 p. m. until the festivities ended at 9:30 with the crowning of a king and queen and the awarding of prizes to the costumed youngsters it was one grand time.

Along the parade route crowded with a throng of people, estimated to be nearly 2,000 there was evidence of every one enjoying one of the finest events this community has ever witnessed. Friends and neighbors were cheering their favorite contestants all along the way.

The Stoutsville Volunteer Firemen in our estimate are a grand group of young men dedicated to the service of this community in which they live and their wives in their Auxiliary have proven they are a credit to the village of Stoutsville.

The dignity in which this affair was conducted and the order that was maintained was typical of the many fine communities in this great land of ours.

We were privileged to have a small part in this fine event and are proud to be citizens of this fine community. Our congratulations to the committee that staged this fine affair. We will be looking forward to a repeat performance next year.

Dear Editor:

We would like to express our feelings about the hippie party which we attended at the Country Club last night.

We had a great time and we are sure everyone else did, too. It was well chaperoned and the committee did a fine job at decorating and planning the party. It did not influence us to become hippies, but discouraged the thought of becoming those weird teenagers!

Kirk Predictions
For '68 Way Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida, prognosticating from about as far outside Democratic strategy councils as a man can get, says President Johnson's 1968 plans include dumping Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Kirk told a Detroit news conference Johnson will withdraw his support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, throw the Democratic convention open and let the Democratic left wing select the dove of their choice for the vice presidential spot.

The first-year GOP governor also had a surprise prediction as to who would wind up as Johnson's 1968 running mate.

"It is my belief that Johnson's choice will be Gen. James Gavin—a move designed to capture headlines as the campaign begins — a Johnson specialty," said Kirk.

Gavin, a retired lieutenant general, has been a persistent critic of Johnson's Vietnam policies. In resigning earlier this year from the Massachusetts Democratic Advisory Council, Gavin said: "I simply cannot support President Johnson for re-election in 1968."

As Kirk visited his home

state, Michigan Gov. George Romney continued his swing through New England with fresh attacks on the Johnson administration's credibility.

Hitting hard at what has been a favorite theme in recent weeks, Republican Romney told a Boston audience the government has failed "to tell us the truth, either at home or abroad."

"As far as I am concerned," he added, "LBJ has not leveled with us—he hasn't told us the truth."

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois—himself considered a darkhorse GOP presidential prospect—said in Los Angeles meanwhile that Republicans aren't split as badly as Democrats over Vietnam.

School District Voters
To Decide Critical Issue

The Circleville City Board of Education today reminded all citizens of the school district that the November election is an extremely important date as related to education.

On that date the electorate will decide what is probably the most important issue to face local schools in many years, because it will produce extremely important revenue and because recent mandates from the legislature require a greater local effort in order to receive state funds for education, the board said.

Not only is the future educational program of the district at stake, but the very existence of the school district will eventually be in jeopardy unless a minimum operating millage is voted at the local level for schools.

In addition to this mandate each school district must meet minimum standards for the entire school district, elementary as well as junior and senior high schools, or face the possibility of having the school district charter lifted. This would allow the assignment of the district to another district and whatever tax rate was in effect in that district would be imposed on the district assigned. This would be in all probability a higher rate than our district would pay with the increase of 2.8 mills it was pointed out.

ALL of these possible problems can be avoided by the passage of the 2.8 mill levy on Nov. 7. It is further pointed out that this is a minimum request to meet the needs of the school district and that actually it is a reduction from a previous request of 3.5 mills. Furthermore, the millage will be reduced next year by one-half mill due to the final payment of a previous bond issue. Also of importance is the fact that the tax rate was reduced this year by one-half mill due to a reduction in bond and interest. The actual increase over last year's taxes will only amount to 1.3 mills when the one-half mill reduction is applied next year. Most school districts either have or will ask for 4-mill increases.

This important levy is a must if the district is to have teachers, books and supplies for next school year and conduct a complete educational program, the board stated. The difficulty encountered by a reduction of six teachers from last year is severe. Not to replace these teachers and meet other necessary requirements would place the school district in an impossible position. Furthermore, it would seriously impair the image of the city of Circleville and affect future growth and progress. So much can be solved with such a small request. One thing that could prevent this progress would be complacency and the resultant failure to vote. The Board of Education and interested citizens are making every effort to get out the positive vote.

4-Year-Old
Is Burned

A 4-year-old Circleville girl was admitted to Children's Hospital Monday with severe burns on her body.

Tammy Sue Oliver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver, received emergency care in Berger Hospital prior to being transferred to the Columbus hospital.

The youngster, according to local hospital authorities, had second and third degree burns on her back, right leg and arm. According to the report, the youngster ran into the house with her clothing on fire. She had been playing in the yard, but no evidence of matches or flames in the vicinity were discovered.

Two other children also received emergency care at Berger Hospital yesterday.

Scott Rush, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Rush, 224 Mingo St., was treated for eye injuries.

Debra Azbell, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Azbell, Adelphi, fell on a broken glass bottle and received cuts to her right hand.

Solons Seek Estimate of Jail Windows

In Monday afternoon's session of the weekly meeting of Pickaway County Commissioners, the solons took action to determine the cost of replacing eight windows on the third floor of the jail.

Lloyd Melvin, Wayne Hines and Charles Morris passed a resolution to contact Alvin Talmadge of Columbus to prepare estimates of the cost of replacing the windows.

Charles Morris made a motion asking the name of the Jefferson-Salem Road be changed to the Gay-Dreisbach Road. The motion died for lack of a second.

Office heads of the courthouse met with commissioners to discuss a Christmas decoration fund. A total of $81 was contributed by employees and office administrators for the fund.

AN estimate of $16,964.30 was presented to the commissioners to equip the county engineering department with a two-way radio system. The estimate included 12 mobile units, two control consoles and the antenna.

Commissioners discussed the new bidding law which becomes effective Dec. 9 with county prosecutor Robert Huffer.

Dear Editor:

This is the only way I can express the anger and disappointment I felt after attending the so-called "Meet the Candidates" night held last night.

There were quite a few people there, obviously interested in hearing issues debated or at least to hear the opinions expressed by the different candidates as to why they want to be elected and what they intend to do for the City of Circleville and Pickaway County.

However, much to my surprise and amazement not one definite opinion was uttered and, believe it or not, questions from the floor were not invited. What in the "sam-hill" was the point?

Dear Editor:

Support the children of Circleville, and vote for the school tax levy. We are already facing partial state control. Let's support our school locally to avoid federal control.

A vote against the school levy could be a vote against the successful future of your child, grandchild, niece, nephew or neighbor for, under the present operating budget these children may not be adequately trained for the future. We are all involved. Many of our teachers have between thirty and forty children in one classroom. When one teacher has this many students there isn't any extra time for the slow learner or fast learner. All the teacher can do is direct her attention to the average student and hope for the best. Discipline is a problem in a crowded classroom. There isn't any extra money left for science equipment. And a good knowledge of science is very important to the student in today's world. These are only a few of the needs that I've been made aware of as a PTA worker and as a mother of a student.

We are already receiving partial state and federal aid. State and federal control increases with the amount of aid we receive. Our tax dollar pays for so much more when we raise the money locally. Don't be misled in thinking that these federal hand outs from Washington are free gifts to our area. These dollars are yours and mine, whether they come from income tax or some hidden tax. We send our money to Washington, pay someone down there to tell us how to spend it, and have it sent back to us a gain. Think how much more this procedure costs us! And we'll have less to say than about how this money is spent than we do now. This cost of education must be paid. If it is your pocket book that's hurting, it will save you money if you pay the cost of education locally.

Let's support our children and get the most for our tax dollar. Vote for the school tax levy.

Dear Editor:

Last night, Oct. 30, there was exemplified in the Stoutsville community along with Washington Township one of the finest examples of cooperation and fine community spirit that we have ever witnessed.

It was the night of the Stoutsville Volunteer Fireman's first Halloween Parade. From the time that the parade started at 6:30 p. m. until the festivities ended at 9:30 with the crowning of a king and queen and the awarding of prizes to the costumed youngsters it was one grand time.

Along the parade route crowded with a throng of people, estimated to be nearly 2,000 there was evidence of every one enjoying one of the finest events this community has ever witnessed. Friends and neighbors were cheering their favorite contestants all along the way.

The Stoutsville Volunteer Firemen in our estimate are a grand group of young men dedicated to the service of this community in which they live and their wives in their Auxiliary have proven they are a credit to the village of Stoutsville.

The dignity in which this affair was conducted and the order that was maintained was typical of the many fine communities in this great land of ours.

We were privileged to have a small part in this fine event and are proud to be citizens of this fine community. Our congratulations to the committee that staged this fine affair. We will be looking forward to a repeat performance next year.

Dear Editor:

We would like to express our feelings about the hippie party which we attended at the Country Club last night.

We had a great time and we are sure everyone else did, too. It was well chaperoned and the committee did a fine job at decorating and planning the party. It did not influence us to become hippies, but discouraged the thought of becoming those weird teenagers!

JANIE and JONI JENKINS

P. S. We would like for there to be more of these parties to attend.

Kirk Predictions For '68 Way Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida, prognosticating from about as far outside Democratic strategy councils as a man can get, says President Johnson's 1968 plans include dumping Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Kirk told a Detroit news conference Johnson will withdraw his support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, throw the Democratic convention open and let the Democratic left wing select the dove of their choice for the vice presidential spot.

The first-year GOP governor also had a surprise prediction as to who would wind up as Johnson's 1968 running mate.

"It is my belief that Johnson's choice will be Gen. James Gavin—a move designed to capture headlines as the campaign begins—a Johnson specialty," said Kirk.

Gavin, a retired lieutenant general, has been a persistent critic of Johnson's Vietnam policies. In resigning earlier this year from the Massachusetts Democratic Advisory Council, Gavin said: "I simply cannot support President Johnson for re-election in 1968."

As Kirk visited his home

state, Michigan Gov. George Romney continued his swing through New England with fresh attacks on the Johnson administration's credibility.

Hitting hard at what has been a favorite theme in recent weeks, Republican Romney told a Boston audience the government has failed "to tell us the truth, either at home or abroad."

"As far as I am concerned," he added, "LBJ has not leveled with us—he hasn't told us the truth."

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois—himself considered a darkhorse GOP presidential prospect—said in Los Angeles meanwhile that Republicans aren't split as badly as Democrats over Vietnam.

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

School District Voters To Decide Critical Issue

The Circleville City Board of Education today reminded all citizens of the school district that the November election is an extremely important date as related to education.

On that date the electorate will decide what is probably the most important issue to face local schools in many years, because it will produce extremely important revenue and because recent mandates from the legislature require a greater local effort in order to receive state funds for education, the board said.

Not only is the future educational program of the district at stake, but the very existence of the school district will eventually be in jeopardy unless a minimum operating millage is voted at the local level for schools.

In addition to this mandate each school district must meet minimum standards for the entire school district, elementary as well as junior and senior high schools, or face the possibility of having the school district charter lifted. This would allow the assignment of the district to another district and whatever tax rate was in effect in that district would be imposed on the district assigned. This would be in all probability a higher rate than our district would pay with the increase of 2.8 mills it was pointed out.

ALL of these possible problems can be avoided by the passage of the 2.8 mill levy on Nov. 7. It is further pointed out that this is a minimum request to meet the needs of the school district and that actually it is a reduction from a previous request of 3.5 mills. Furthermore, the millage will be reduced next year by one-half mill due to the final payment of a previous bond issue. Also of importance is the fact that the tax rate was reduced this year by one-half mill due to a reduction in bond and interest. The actual increase over last year's taxes will only amount to 1.3 mills when the one-half mill reduction is applied next year. Most school districts either have or will ask for 4-mill increases.

This important levy is a must if the district is to have teachers, books and supplies for next school year and conduct a complete educational program, the board stated. The difficulty encountered by a reduction of six teachers from last year is severe. Not to replace these teachers and meet other necessary requirements would place the school district in an impossible position. Furthermore, it would seriously impair the image of the city of Circleville and affect future growth and progress. So much can be solved with such a small request. One thing that could prevent this progress would be complacency and the resultant failure to vote. The Board of Education and interested citizens are making every effort to get out the positive vote.
